Talks May Start Next Week in Moscow

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

MISSOURIAN DUCKS ETHICS CODE VOTE

WASHINGTON -- It is understandable that Missouri's Senator Edward Long, friend of the people and enemy of the wiretapping bug, should bridle with sensitivity at the mention of campaign contributions this high political season.

Among the funds which have contributed money to the senator's campaigns is the Voluntary Political Educational, Legislative, Charitable and Defense Fund of the St. Louis Pipefitters Local 562.

The fund is, in effect, controlled by another defender of the faith, the union's iron-handed business manager, Lawrence Callanan. He has tangled, and sometimes lost, with the FBI, the Department of Justice, the International Revenue Service, the United States marshals, the St. Louis police, the Missouri state police and even the sheriff of Clayton, Mo. He is a brutal ex-convict, fought by the decent citizens of St. Louis, who, when sentenced to 12 years for labor racketeering in 1954 heard the judge say:

"Callanan took from the funds of the union, of which he is an officer, funds to pay for his defense. Callanan was the brains of the racketeering conspiracy." The judge added that this case is a "more grievous and aggravated violation of the law" than any other racketeering case tried before him.

That was long ago but Callanan was paroled in 1960 and pardoned in April 1964. So today he is the boss and officially the business agent of the labor - controlling Plumbers' Local 562 at an acknowledged annual income of about $29,000.

All this came to mind the other day when the Senate voted on the new code of ethics. Senator Long did not show up. He did not pair his vote. He passed it right by -- though he is a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, the Judiciary Committee and the Special Committee on Aging.

For years now, the senator has been roaming the land speaking at Teamsters rallies, denouncing wiretapping, shouting for civil liberties, clutching the people to his breast, blasting the IRS, the Justice Department and other law enforcement agencies. They have been mute. The unwritten law is that you don't argue with a senator.

What compounded the senator's senstitivity over action on a code of ethics and the fiduciary responsibilities of members of the Congress is a special bill introduced by Mr. Long on March 8. He called for the creation of a federal - type "ombudsman."

An ombudsman is an awesomely honest chap. His morality and conduct and devotion to the little peole are universally accepted. He is the man to slash red tape. He is the man to rally to the loneliest citizen beset by the mightiest bureaucracy. This, then, is the type of public guardian Senator Long says he yearns to establish in these United States.

Yet Senator Long did not vote for a diluted code of ethics. And neither does the Senate Ethics Committee appear interested in the senator's own code. Presumably the ethics committee is investigating charges that Senator Long delivered all those speeches to help a friend - Jim Hoffa.

During this less than intense investigation by the guardians of all the people, some mighty strange things occurred.

The committee retained the old Senate rackets committee's crack investigating auditor, Carmine Bellino. He came. He looked. He conferred. He mapped the study. He quit before he started.

And when I telephoned him, he thought it best not to talk. Why? What restrictions were placed on this man who could have saved Diogenes a lot of travel.

Soviet Sources Say Hanoi Willing to Halt Attacks

LONDON (AP) — Soviet informants said today they expect preliminary Vietnam peace talks to begin in Moscow next week. They said the North Vietnamese have already assured the United States privately they will launch no major offensive if all American bombing attacks are halted.

The sources, who cannot be identified by name, said Hanoi already has begun lifting the siege of Khe Sanh as a sign of its intentions.

None of these statements could be confirmed in official Western circles.

The officials cautioned, however, against expecting an early end to the peace negotiations. They said they expected them to go for months.

Other sources recalled that 12,000 Americans were killed in Korea while truce talks were going on.

The Russian informants said Moscow was not consulted by Hanoi before Wednesday's conditional acceptance of President Johnson's call for peace talks.

They said that in view of Peking's present relatively low influence in the North Vietnamese capital, they did not believe the Red Chinese were consulted either.

"What you Americans seem to find hard to realize is that North Vietnam is a sovereign nation," one Russian said.

They said they expected the preliminary talks to get under way "very quickly— probably next week."

They added that they believed the only possible sites for such talks were Moscow or Paris and that the Soviet capital has a 60-40 chance of being chosen.

Moscow is the only capital in the world with American, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomatic representatives. Paris has a diplomatic mission from Hanoi but no official representative of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The Soviet informants said they believed a major stumbling block, once real peace negotiations get under way, will be an American commitment to withdraw from South Vietnam.

They said this is a prime issue in Hanoi's eyes and the North Vietnamese want a definite agreement that U.S. withdrawal will start the moment a peace pact is signed and be completed within a fixed time.

The Russians did not believe Washington would easily agree to this in view of the Manila agreement between the United States and its Vietnam allies that withdrawal would not begin until six months after the end of Viet Cong resistance.

The sources said they expected the preliminary talks to be fairly short.

They said Moscow "has certain knowledge" that Hanoi has privately assured Washington that after a complete halt in bombing and other attacks on North Vietnam, the Communist forces, both Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, will refrain from launching any major offensive until conclusion or breakdown of peace negotiations.

They said a partial evacuation of forces besieging the U.S. Marines at Khe Sanh has already begun and that Communist forces were putting up little more than token resistance to a U.S.-South Vietnamese rescue drive up Highway 9 toward the base.

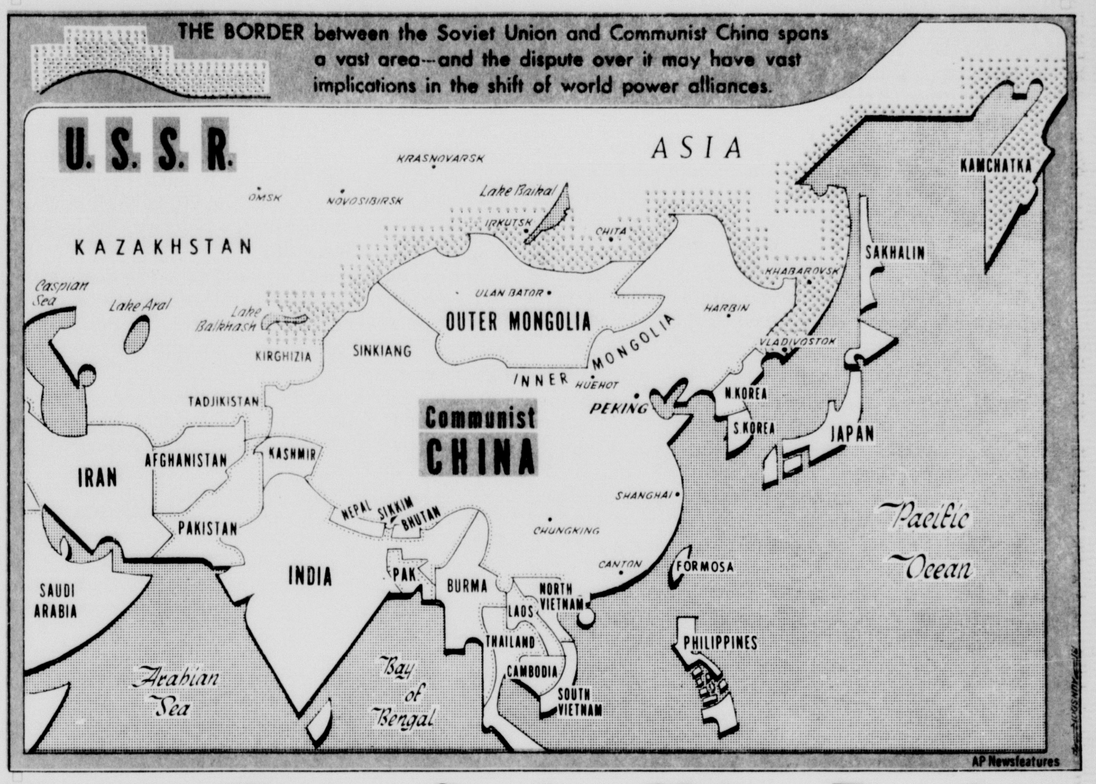
The informants said Hanoi was ready for private or public talks, in accord with Washington's views, both in the preliminary and the peace conference stages.

The Soviet Union has not yet followed up a British bid for joint action to set Vietnam peacekeeping machinery in motion, qualified sources reported.

The two countries, as cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina, were urged by President Johnson Sunday night to reconvene the conference.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart called in Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky Monday and Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent a direct message to Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Informed sources said there had been no Soviet response.



Uneasy Truce Soviet-China Borders

By The Associated Press

Another undeclared propaganda truce, probably as temporary as those which preceded it, appeared to be in effect this spring along the uneasy borders of the Soviet Union and Red China.

The lull does not mean Peking has shelved its territorial complaints against the Russians. This conflict is likely to become more intense as time goes by and eventually will play an important role in shifts of world power alliances.

The last undeclared truce came just a year ago, when both Moscow and Peking muted the border quarrels. Then, early this year, the Chinese opened the door to a new round of tension. Propaganda from Peking suggested the Russians had a hand in a secessionist movement in Inner Mongolia.

In the past, the Chinese had attributed similar intentions to the Russians with regard to the Sinkiang - Uighur antonomous region, site of China's nuclear tests.

The latest accusations came as Moscow was preparing for the Budapest conference of Communist leaders which in turn, the Russians hoped, would prepare the way for a world conference of Communist leaders. Such a conference probably would be asked to condemn the Chinese leadership for its divisive activities in the world movement.

The Budapest meeting has come and gone, and the propaganda about Soviet Chinese borders has faded again into the background. If a world Communist conerence is held, as advertised, next fall, it is likely to be preceded by yet another round of Soviet - Chinese border tension in the past.

The Russians for many years had a keen interest in areas across the border rich in raw materials. China's current turbulence and its leaders' angry feud with the "Soviet revisionist clique" could provide Moscow with an excuse for eyeing the northern provinces in the context of Soviet security. The dispute over territory of Soviet territory first burst into public view in March, 1963, when People's Daily, the main Peking newspaper, announced a Chinese intention to push for revision of all "unfair" treaties concluded in the preceding century, reserving the right to "acknowledge or refute, revise or reconclude" such agreements.

For a time there was dead silence from Moscow. Then wheels began to move. The Kremlin sought contact with the Chinese to discuss border questions and "confirm border lines." In reply, China spoke of "correcting" border lines. Experts of both sides met and got nowhere, and Peking, through Foreign Minister Chen Yi, repeated a claim to at least 600,000 square miles of Soviet territory.

There was particular tension in the Sinkiang area. Sinkiang, 2½ times the size of Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Savage thunderstorms and a string of killer tornadoes left 13 persons dead in the Mississippi Valley today as the center of a spring storm which ripped through the Great Plains Wednesday pushed east.

Twelve of the dead were victims of tornadoes in Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky. A Cisne, Ill., man was drowned in a swollen creek near his home.

Temperatures fell rapidly in the wake of the storms and cold-wave warnings were issued for the central plains.

Parts of Wyoming, Nebraska and Colorado remained isolated in the wake of a storm which piled up 6-foot drifts. Helicopters and plows began early today to search for stranded motorists and marooned ranchers.

Arkansas counted six twisters in a two-hour period and reported six persons dead. Search parties hunted rural areas devastated by the funnel clouds for other possible victims.

Four persons died at Atoka, Tenn., 30 miles north of Memphis. Ambulances transferred 30 to 40 victims to the Memphis Naval Air Station Hospital. They were victims of a twister which smashed into a trailer park at Millington, north of Memphis.

Another twister bounced across Calloway County in western Kentucky and killed a young couple whose bodies were tossed 100 yards from their demolished home.

The heavy rains caused flash flooding of creeks and left 7,500 residents of Russellville, Ky., isolated. Many were evacuated by boat. Other homes in the area were splintered by the winds which littered highways with debris and toppled trees.

Two blocks of homes and a church were leveled and five persons were injured in a tornado that hit the Vincent community west of West Memphis, Ark. Nine homes were demolished and six persons were injured at Crawfordsville, Ark., a few miles farther west.

Arkansas Power and Light Co. reported at least six towns without electrical power after the storms ripped down portions of a 500,000-volt line between Little Rock and Memphis. Seven other cities had only partial electrical service, the company said.

Arkansas communities hit included Star City, Gould, Dewitt, Paragould, Vincent and Crawfordsville.

Search operations frequently were hampered by debris and tangled power lines and authorities said it would take some time to make any estimate of damage.

Damage to the trailer park alone in Tennessee was estimated at more than $500,000 by Millington Mayor Tom Hall. He said 30 trailers were destroyed and 70 others damaged. The park is occupied mostly by service personnel from Memphis Naval Air Station.

Levy Fails, Charleston Will Try Again

CHARLESTON -- The proposed 25-cent levy increase for the R-1 school district failed to pass in Tuesday's election, 716--755.

The 195 absentee ballots were counted Wednesday.

The board of education was called a special election April 23 when the proposed increase will be voted on again.

The levy would increase the total to $3.75 for $100 assessed valuation.

At the school board meeting James Martin was re-elected president. Other officers elected were Dennis Quertermous, vice president; Eleanor Hequembourg, secretary, and Robert Hearnes, treasurer.

South America has the world's driest desert (Chile's Atacama Desert), longest mountain range (Andes) and largest jungle (Amazonia).

Five Injured in Road Mishaps

Four Charleston residents were injured seriously following a fishing trip as they were returning home at 6:16 p.m. Wednesday on route K, five miles northeast of Charleston.

A 1967 Dodge pickup truck, driven by Cletus Counts, 24, ran off the road in a rain, went down an enbankment and struck a tree.

The four were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital. Three are listed in serious condition and as critical.

Seriously injured were Emma Counts, 22; James Edward Bradley, 24, and the driver. Edward Lee Golightly, 19, is in critical condition.

In a farm implement-car accident, Wednesday at 11;30 p.m. on highway 62, one mile east of Miner, Robert Lee Combs, 27, route three, Sikeston, is in serious condition in the Missouri Delta Community hospital. His 1956 Plymouth ran into an farm tractor, that fell off of an International tractor-trailer, driven by Alvin Clifton Hellend, 41, Senaca, Ill., into the car's path.

$1,150 Received in Easter Seal Drive

The Easter Seal campaign has received $1,150 in contributions, reported Mrs. Buford Baber, campaign chairman for the Scott county Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Mrs. Baber said more funds were needed to continue rehabilitation and treatment services for physically handicapped children and adults.

She estimated that 21 million Americans suffer from crippling conditions, such as arthritis, hearing and speech impairments, orthopedic and strokes.

Another 370,000 are disabled by accidents at home, at work and on the highway. Some 5,300,000 with disabilities are unable to work or carry on other activities on a regular basis.

"The Scott County Easter Seal Society," Mrs. Baber said, "with the help of concerned countians can give many of our own disabled neighbors the opportunity to reach maximum independence whereby they can become self - supporting."

Donations may be sent to the Scott County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, in care of Mrs. Jack Limbaugh 119 West Davidson, Chaffee, Mo. 63740.

Youth Passing Loading School Bus Charged

A Sikeston youth was charged by police at 8 a.m. today with careless and imprudent driving for passing a school bus that had stopped for loading on Smith street.

Johnny Wayne Petty, 17, 847 East Gladys St., was charged with careless and imprudent driving and operating a motor vehicle without a city auto license.

Richard Hobbs, 205 Dixie St., was charged at 7:13 a.m. today with careless and imprudent driving for failure to yield the right of way, police reported.

Hobbs drove from Helen street into the path of a southbound automobile on North Main causing a collision. Cleo Gilmer, New Madrid, the driver of the southbound car, suffered bruises to her right leg and broken teeth. She was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital, police reported.

Sikeston Student Wins Science Fair First Prize

Thomas Hedrick's project, Computer Input Enabling Programming by Written Material, won first place in the physics division.

Other area winners in the senior division were Rick Blankenship, Dexter high school, who won second place in botany with Photosynthesis vs. Herbicide Concentration; Karen Wilson, Dexter high school, first place, medicine and health, The Dependency of Muscle Contractions on ATP; Dixie Jennings, Dexter high school, second place, zoology, Oxidative Phosphorylation and Mary Grant, Dexter high school, third place, zoology, Metabolic Transformations of Acetate.

Area winners in the junior division were Glyn Jarrell, Dexter high school, second place, medicine and health, Heart Rate vs. Adrenalin Concentration; Laura Doggett, Sikeston junior high school, second place, chemistry and biochemistry, Ozone's Effect on Plants; Ned Tanner, Sikeston junior high school, tied for second place, earth and space, Effects of Radiation on Soils in Southeast Missouri;

Randy Abernathy, Advance R-4, first place, physics, How Heat and Cold Affect Bouncing.

Leasing Program for 100 Low Rent Homes Wins U.S. Approval

The Sikeston Housing Authority received official approval Tuesday of a program calling for the leasing of 100 low rent houses to be built in Sikeston.

The approval came in a telegram from Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long and Rep. Paul C. Jones.

The Sikeston Housing Authority will begin accepting plans and proposals from investor builders immediately.

The approval means the department of housing and urban development will provide financial assistance to cover part of the rent with the remainder paid by tenants.

The attractive feature of the lease program to building contractors is that the Housing Authority will guarantee the house will be rented for 10 years.

Billy Hanna, director of the Sikeston Housing Authority, called the regional HUD office in Ft. Worth today and learned the telegram constituted official approval of the program.

The procedure to follow now is for builders to submit plans and proposals including elevation, location, floor plans and approximate cost of units. The plans are to be submitted to the Housing Authority board.

Upon acceptance, the board will issue a letter of intent, which is binding, stating that the Housing Authority will lease the units from the contractor at a stated amount per month.

The lease will be for five years with a five-year extension option, Hanna said.

"I am almost certain there will be a clause in the lease, whereby the occupant has the option to buy the single-family dwellings," Hanna said.

The units that may be built include: 20 one-bedroom units, 65 two-bedroom units, 10 three-bedroom units and 5 four-bedroom units.

The lease program guarantees the Sikeston Housing Authority an annual contributions contract which underwrites the rent payments to the persons who finance the building of units.

The rent payments will be $72 per month for one-bedroom units, $90 per month for two-bedroom units, $110 per month for three-bedroom units and $135 per month for four-bedroom units.

Tenants will pay a part of the monthly rent payment based on their income. The Sikeston Housing Authority will pay the remainder with funds received through the lease program.

Cost of the units to be constructed will depend on the individual private contractors. The rent payments are based on a two-bedroom house estimated to cost $11,000, with a 20 per cent difference per bedroom.

The cost of the two bedroom house is based on public housing and the estimate is made by the regional HUD office in Ft. Worth, Tex., Hanna said. Private contractors should be able to build the units for less, Hanna said.

Bill Burch New President Of Jaycees

The new officers will be installed at a banquet beginning at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the Country Club. A dance will follow.

Bill Burch

School Board Reelects Martin

Dr. A. D. Martin was reelected president of the public school board Wednesday following the annual school election.

All other officers of the board were reelected. They are Bob Mitchell, first vice president; Bruce Lewis, second vice president; Charles Matthews, secretary, and Charles Simpson, treasurer.

Bob McCord, elected in Tuesday's election, was sworn in as the only new member of the board. He replaces O. C. Lewis, who did not seek reelection. Clem Beal was reelected.

In other Board action, the allocation of fund levies for the 1968-69 school year was approved: teacher fund, $1.20; incidental fund, $1.10; building fund, $1.25 and debt service, 60 cents.

The board was informed by Supt. Lynn Twitty, that in accordance with previous board approval, negotiation are underway with city officials, concerning an exchange of the old post office building to the city. The exchange would be for an equal amount of space, which the schools need for storage purposes.

The superintendent said that a storage building of an inexpensive type, which would meet school needs, might be constructed by the city.

The city would get the better constructed, more substantial post office building for city governmental purposes if the exchange can be affected.

The annual Easter break will begin at the end of the school day Wednesday. Classes will resume April 16.

A faculty in-service workshop will be held May 3. Students will be dismissed for the day.

The board will invite social studies classes to attend its next meeting in May.

The board probably will meet at the high school because of limited space at the regular board meeting room.

The board was informed that a revision of the financial budget is being made because of the changes effected by the Morehouse annexation and voters' approval of the kindergarten program.

Incidental fund bills amounting to $18,050.91 were ordered paid as were accounts totaling $8,322.30 from the building fund.

Sikes and Noles Sworn in Posts

Mayor Kendall Sikes and vice mayor Taylor Noles were sworn in for three-year council posts in a meeting of the city council at 5 p.m. Wednesday at the city administration building.

Votes cast in the city election Tuesday were canvassed and the results were accepted. Sikes and Noles were reelected to three-year posts. Paul Jobe was elected to the one year remaining of the unexpired council post of the late Harry E. Dudley.

An ordinance was adopted accepting the annexation of the 270 acres to the southeast of the old city limits. The annexation passed by an 8 to 1 majority in the Tuesday election.

Jobe and Lee Shell did not attend the meeting.

The council will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday at the city administration building for election of mayor.

Temperatures fell rapidly in the wake of the storms and cold-wave warnings were issued for the central plains.

Parts of Wyoming, Nebraska and Colorado remained isolated in the wake of a storm which piled up 6-foot drifts. Helicopters and plows began early today to search for stranded motorists and marooned ranchers.

Arkansas counted six twisters in a two-hour period and reported six persons dead. Search parties hunted rural areas devastated by the funnel clouds for other possible victims.

Four persons died at Atoka, Tenn., 30 miles north of Memphis. Ambulances transferred 30 to 40 victims to the Memphis Naval Air Station Hospital. They were victims of a twister which smashed into a trailer park at Millington, north of Memphis.

Another twister bounced across Calloway County in western Kentucky and killed a young couple whose bodies were tossed 100 yards from their demolished home.

The heavy rains caused flash flooding of creeks and left 7,500 residents of Russellville, Ky., isolated. Many were evacuated by boat. Other homes in the area were splintered by the winds which littered highways with debris and toppled trees.

Two blocks of homes and a church were leveled and five persons were injured in a tornado that hit the Vincent community west of West Memphis, Ark. Nine homes were demolished and six persons were injured at Crawfordsville, Ark., a few miles farther west.

Arkansas Power and Light Co. reported at least six towns without electrical power after the storms ripped down portions of a 500,000-volt line between Little Rock and Memphis. Seven other cities had only partial electrical service, the company said.

Search operations frequently were hampered by debris and tangled power lines and authorities said it would take some time to make any estimate of damage.

Damage to the trailer park alone in Tennessee was estimated at more than $500,000 by Millington Mayor Tom Hall. He said 30 trailers were destroyed and 70 others damaged. The park is occupied mostly by service personnel from Memphis Naval Air Station.

Leasing Program for 100 Low Rent Homes Wins U.S. Approval

The Sikeston Housing Authority received official approval Tuesday of a program calling for the leasing of 100 low rent houses to be built in Sikeston.

The approval came in a telegram from Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long and Rep. Paul C. Jones.

The Sikeston Housing Authority will begin accepting plans and proposals from investor builders immediately.

The approval means the department of housing and urban development will provide financial assistance to cover part of the rent with the remainder paid by tenants.

The attractive feature of the lease program to building contractors is that the Housing Authority will guarantee the houses will be rented for 10 years.

Billy Hanna, director of the Sikeston Housing Authority, called the regional HUD office in Ft. Worth today and learned the telegram constituted official approval of the program.

The procedure to follow now is for builders to submit plans and proposals including elevation, location, floor plans and approximate cost of units. The plans are to be submitted to the Housing Authority board.

Upon acceptance, the board will issue a letter of intent, which is binding, stating that the Housing Authority will lease the units from the contractor at a stated amount per month.

The lease will be for five years with a five-year extension option, Hanna said.

"I am almost certain there will be a clause in the lease, whereby the occupant has the option to buy the single-family dwellings," Hanna said.

The units that may be built include: 20 one-bedroom units, 65 two-bedroom units, 10 three-bedroom units and 5 four-bedroom units.

The lease program guarantees the Sikeston Housing Authority an annual contributions contract which underwrites the rent payments to the persons who finance the building of units.

The rent payments will be $72 per month for one-bedroom units, $90 per month for two-bedroom units, $110 per month for three-bedroom units and $135 per month for four-bedroom units.

Tenants will pay a part of the monthly rent payment based on their income. The Sikeston Housing Authority will pay the remainder with funds received through the lease program.

Cost of the units to be constructed will depend on the individual private contractors. The rent payments are based on a two-bedroom house estimated to cost $11,000, with a 20 per cent difference per bedroom.

The cost of the two bedroom house is based on public housing and the estimate is made by the regional HUD office in Ft. Worth, Tex., Hanna said. Private contractors should be able to build the units for less, Hanna said.

Levy Fails, Charleston Will Try Again

CHARLESTON -- The proposed 25-cent levy increase for the R-1 school district failed to pass in Tuesday's election, 716--755.

The 195 absentee ballots were counted Wednesday.

The board of education was called a special election April 23 when the proposed increase will be voted on again.

The levy would increase the total to $3.75 for $100 assessed valuation.

At the school board meeting James Martin was re-elected president. Other officers elected were Dennis Quertermous, vice president; Eleanor Hequembourg, secretary, and Robert Hearnes, treasurer.

South America has the world's driest desert (Chile's Atacama Desert), longest mountain range (Andes) and largest jungle (Amazonia).

Five Injured in Road Mishaps

Four Charleston residents were injured seriously following a fishing trip as they were returning home at 6:16 p.m. Wednesday on route K, five miles northeast of Charleston.

A 1967 Dodge pickup truck, driven by Cletus Counts, 24, ran off the road in a rain, went down an enbankment and struck a tree.

The four were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital. Three are listed in serious condition and as critical.

In a farm implement-car accident, Wednesday at 11;30 p.m. on highway 62, one mile east of Miner, Robert Lee Combs, 27, route three, Sikeston, is in serious condition in the Missouri Delta Community hospital. His 1956 Plymouth ran into an farm tractor, that fell off of an International tractor-trailer, driven by Alvin Clifton Hellend, 41, Senaca, Ill., into the car's path.

$1,150 Received in Easter Seal Drive

The Easter Seal campaign has received $1,150 in contributions, reported Mrs. Buford Baber, campaign chairman for the Scott county Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Mrs. Baber said more funds were needed to continue rehabilitation and treatment services for physically handicapped children and adults.

She estimated that 21 million Americans suffer from crippling conditions, such as arthritis, hearing and speech impairments, orthopedic and strokes.

Another 370,000 are disabled by accidents at home, at work and on the highway. Some 5,300,000 with disabilities are unable to work or carry on other activities on a regular basis.

"The Scott County Easter Seal Society," Mrs. Baber said, "with the help of concerned countians can give many of our own disabled neighbors the opportunity to reach maximum independence whereby they can become self - supporting."

Donations may be sent to the Scott County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, in care of Mrs. Jack Limbaugh119 West Davidson, Chaffee, Mo. 63740.

Youth Passing Loading School Bus Charged

A Sikeston youth was charged by police at 8 a.m. today with careless and imprudent driving for passing a school bus that had stopped for loading on Smith street.

Johnny Wayne Petty, 17, 847 East Gladys St., was charged with careless and imprudent driving and operating a motor vehicle without a city auto license.

Richard Hobbs, 205 Dixie St., was charged at 7:13 a.m. today with careless and imprudent driving for failure to yield the right of way, police reported.

Hobbs drove from Helen street into the path of a southbound automobile on North Main causing a collision. Cleo Gilmer, New Madrid, the driver of the southbound car, suffered bruises to her right leg and broken teeth. She was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital, police reported.

Sikeston Student Wins Science Fair First Prize

Thomas Hedrick's project, Computer Input Enabling Programming by Written Material, won first place in the physics division.

Other area winners in the senior division were Rick Blankenship, Dexter high school, who won second place in botany with Photosynthesis vs. Herbicide Concentration; Karen Wilson, Dexter high school, first place, medicine and health, The Dependency of Muscle Contractions on ATP; Dixie Jennings, Dexter high school, second place, zoology, Oxidative Phosphorylation and Mary Grant, Dexter high school, third place, zoology, Metabolic Transformations of Acetate.

Area winners in the junior division were Glyn Jarrell, Dexter high school, second place, medicine and health, Heart Rate vs. Adrenalin Concentration; Laura Doggett, Sikeston junior high school, second place, chemistry and biochemistry, Ozone's Effect on Plants; Ned Tanner, Sikeston junior high school, tied for second place, earth and space, Effects of Radiation on Soils in Southeast Missouri;

Randy Abernathy, Advance R-4, first place, physics, How Heat and Cold Affect Bouncing.

School Board Reelects Martin

Dr. A. D. Martin was reelected president of the public school board Wednesday following the annual school election.

All other officers of the board were reelected. They are Bob Mitchell, first vice president; Bruce Lewis, second vice president; Charles Matthews, secretary, and Charles Simpson, treasurer.

Bob McCord, elected in Tuesday's election, was sworn in as the only new member of the board. He replaces O. C. Lewis, who did not seek reelection. Clem Beal was reelected.

In other Board action, the allocation of fund levies for the 1968-69 school year was approved: teacher fund, $1.20; incidental fund, $1.10; building fund, $1.25 and debt service, 60 cents.

The board was informed by Supt. Lynn Twitty, that in accordance with previous board approval, negotiation are underway with city officials, concerning an exchange of the old post office building to the city. The exchange would be for an equal amount of space, which the schools need for storage purposes.

The superintendent said that a storage building of an inexpensive type, which would meet school needs, might be constructed by the city.

The city would get the better constructed, more substantial post office building for city governmental purposes if the exchange can be affected.

The annual Easter break will begin at the end of the school day Wednesday. Classes will resume April 16.

A faculty in-service workshop will be held May 3. Students will be dismissed for the day.

The board will invite social studies classes to attend its next meeting in May.

The board probably will meet at the high school because of limited space at the regular board meeting room.

The board was informed that a revision of the financial budget is being made because of the changes effected by the Morehouse annexation and voters' approval of the kindergarten program.

Incidental fund bills amounting to $18,050.91 were ordered paid as were accounts totaling $8,322.30 from the building fund.

Sikes and Noles Sworn in Posts

Mayor Kendall Sikes and vice mayor Taylor Noles were sworn in for three-year council posts in a meeting of the city council at 5 p.m. Wednesday at the city administration building.

Votes cast in the city election Tuesday were canvassed and the results were accepted. Sikes and Noles were reelected to three-year posts. Paul Jobe was elected to the one year remaining of the unexpired council post of the late Harry E. Dudley.

An ordinance was adopted accepting the annexation of the 270 acres to the southeast of the old city limits. The annexation passed by an 8 to 1 majority in the Tuesday election.

Jobe and Lee Shell did not attend the meeting.

The council will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday at the city administration building for election of mayor.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We don't blame him.

After starting the ruckus it was time to get away before the club swinging started.

The doctor does not intend to take any punishment for his misdeeds if running away will keep it from happening.

Like the union leaders, he disclaims anything to do with the trouble.

WHY, IN THE NAME OF GOD?

For 21 years we have sent our young men overseas to Europe by the thousands -- so many there's scarcely a home in the land which hasn't had a member there in the army of occupation for one reason -- to keep communism from taking over the free world.

For 21 years we've sent our fine young men to Africa, the Near East, the Far East, the islands of the Pacific, up into the arctic cold and down into tropical heat, kept them there month after weary month, year after weary year, for just one reason -- to keep communism from taking over the free world.

For 21 long years this nation has spent billion upon billions to finance the Marshall Plan, subsidize the UN and NATO, help the neutrals, help even Communist countries and those who twist our tail and spit in our face every chance they get until we have so squandered our reserves that should all the countries to whom we now owe gold call for repayment at once we could give them every ounce and still not be square with the world, for just one reason -- to prevent the spread of communism and the enslavement of free men.

For 21 long years this nation, after winning a great war, has strained its economic resources, marshalled its engineers and scientists, used up raw materials and manpower much better used for other purposes to create, maintain and enlarge an arsenal not only for our own armed forces but for a long list of other nations for one reason, and one reason only, to deter Communist aggression and world domination.

Twice in the past two decades, we have drafted our young men and reservists to fight and die--and thousands upon thousands have given their lives in Korea and Vietnam -- for just one reason -- to resist Communist aggression.

This has been our national purpose for 21 years. This had been our contribution to the life and death struggle to preserve human freedom and prevent the enslavement of that portion of the world population which has not already been enslaved.

No nation has ever been so generous, so unselfish, so dedicated, so self-sacrificing for so long in all the history of mankind. Ours has been a noble purpose, one for which our young men have been willing to give their time, and their lives, and for which Americans have been willing to spend their treasure.

Then why, in the name of God, do we permit the enemy we resist without the borders of this country to work within it unrestrained -- protected by every legal and gnat so-called liberal interpreters of the law can gag on?

We have seen/Aug.16/ a federal judge, fortunately overruled almost without a hearing by a higher court, dare to enjoin a congressional committee seeking to investigate treason in this country -- trying to determine what aid and comfort, material and spiritual, Americans are giving our enemies.

We have heard Americans take the stand, admit they are Communists, boast how much they have aided, are aiding, and will aid the very Communist soldiers who are killing men wearing the uniform of this country and sent into battle by our own government. We have listened to them defy their country and the congress, disrupt a congressional hearing, call the president of this country a murderer -- and let a few off with nothing more than a $10 fine, while others weren't punished at all!

We have seen treasonable Americans seek by force to prevent the loading of supplies being shipped to soldiers fighting for this country half a globe away and not even be arrested! In fact, simple-minded commentators and reporters have dared to criticize an American marine who pushed a crazed young female traitor out of the way of such a shipment because she stumbled and fell into a ditch full of water, which they intimated was an act of brutality.

We have seen others try to break up college draft examinations, interfere with the work of draft boards, disturb the wedding of our president's daughter, demean and call men moving toward Vietnam murderers of women and children.

And, if we've done anything, it has been nothing more than to slap them on the wrist and let them know we think they are naughty children!

Why, in the name that is right, do we suffer this? Why do we let people too young to vote or be elected to congress influence our foreign policy? Why do we listen to people so wet behind the ears they'd never be hired for a position of any importance by a private business firm? Why do we spend so much time, blood, treasure and effort opposing communism abroad and let young punks and perverts, who boast they are Communists, fight our government here at home?

Why do we protect with all the force of the law the right of admitted Communists to teach in publicly-supported colleges and universities?

Why do we listen to prattle about the right of dissent by hopheads from hashish or LSD parties on our campuses, when other young men have been drafted to give up jobs, leave their families, and die in foreign jungles all in the name of resistance to communism?

Why can't a nation which only 25 years ago could move whole populations of Japanese, whose only crime was being the same blood as that of one of our enemies, crack down upon these traitors in or midst today?

Why can't we shut these people up for as long as our men are dying for us? If communism be wrong, and if its spread should be prevented, why must we give these agitators freedom to spread it here in America -- nay, even protect them as they spread it?

Why, when there is open treason in our streets, on our campuses, even in our congressional hearings, can anyone think that to let it continue unpunished is not to break faith with our men fighting overseas?

If communism must be resisted at all costs in Berlin and Saigon, why shouldn't we resist it with all our might and main in Washington, and Berkeley, and Chicago?

Mr. Maurice Stans, former Director of the Bureau of the Budget, speaking at the Congress of American Industry, expressed his concern over the rapidly accelerating inflation in the American economy. According to the National Association of Manufacturers, he stated with the large government deficits, a long unfavorable balance of payments, a new crisis in international finances, and general uncertainty for business and the domestic economy, it is a good time to prove for a better way of doing things. He suggests that one way is to slow down federal spending and apply common sense in setting of budget priorities.

Representative John T. Moreover, the ever-increasing number of complaints, misdeliveries, nondeliveries, delays and backups are a clear warning that even more serious trouble lies ahead unless corrective steps are taken. As long as the department remains a politically dominated agency where appointments and all promotions, from postmaster to carrier, are based on political favoritism rather than merit, postal experience and good management procedures, a first-class postal system cannot be developed and maintained."

"You're only three chins from victory."

"Have you tried the egg yolk and raisins diet? It worked wonders for my brother."

"Have you tried getting along with nothing but distilled water and coconut milk? It worked wonders for my sister, but now whenever she visits Florida and sees a palm tree she has an irresistible urge to climb it."

"If you lose 25 pounds at your age, Madge, it simply means you'll have to buy a whole new wardrobe and spend $1,000 on a face lift."

"Taking it off is easy. Keeping it off is the hard part. Have you thought about that?"

"After all, it's only what you eat that makes you fat— so all you have to do is don't eat it. Simple, isn't it?"

"If your trouble is a sweet tooth, why don't you try the dill-pickle-with-whipped cream diet? It worked wonders for an aunt of mine."

"Perhaps it would help your mental attitude, Harry, if you went back to reading the sports pages in the newspaper and quit spending the entire evening drooling over the food pictures in the grocery store ads."

"Isn't that funny, Madge? I eat as much as three longshoremen, and still I wear a size 10 dress."

"They say if you lose weight too fast you also can lose your powers of resistance and may pop off with pneumonia or tuberculosis."

"The Gourmet Society cordially invites you to attend its annual 12-course banquet. The menu will be— ."

"Have you tried the pep pill and black coffee diet? It worked wonders for one of the salesmen for our firm— jittered him down to a shadow. Of course, when he went to the hospital, he put most of it right back on."

"As your doctor, Harry, I want to congratulate you. You've lost another four ounces this week. At this rate you'll lose 13 pounds in a year, and within five years— if you just stick to it— you'll be within 10 pounds of your normal weight."

NORTH KOREA PLAYS DANGEROUS GAME

Lacking not only the answers to some essential questions concerning the seizure of the USS Pueblo but, more importantly, lacking insight into the minds of the leaders of North Korea, it is impossible to estimate the full seriouesness of this "incident."

Serious enough it is, to be sure. The capture of another nation's ship on the high seas is and always has been, according to what little law exists, between sovereign states, an act of war. It fully warrants the limited military preparations this nation has made, in conjunction with its diplomatic protestations.

Coming hard upon the exposure of a plot by North Korean infiltrators to assassinate the president of South Korea and other government officials, it suggests we are dealing with a bunch of fanatics who are itching for a replay of the Korean War.

It hardly seems possible, however, that North Korea actually desires to force issues to the point of war, that it is so out of touch with reality that it believes the United States is too overextended in South Vietnam to undertake another military effort in Korea.

Even did the North Koreans believe that, they must be aware that South Korea, which would inevitably be drawn into any conflict, is not South Vietnam. It is a strong, unified, well-armed country immeasurably better able to defend itself than it was in 1950.

More likely is it that North Korea is confident that the United States will endure almost any provocation short of full-scale attack on South Korea rather than embark on another war, and that pulling Uncle Sam's beard is a good way to impress friends and influence other Asians.

If so, it is a dangerous game to play. Small provocations have a way of setting off bigger provocations unless the whole process is immediately damped by diplomacy.

North Korea's release of an obviously phony confession by the skipper of the Pueblo, its denunciatory reply to our initial approaches and Russia's unwillingness or inability to use its good offices have done nothing to ease tensions.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has advised the North Koreans to "cool it." But the danger at the moment stems from the fact that, thinking they have achieved some sort of propaganda victory, they may be playing it too cool.

THE PARLIAMENT OF MAN

U Thant, Secretary-General of the United Nations, said in a speech at Uppsala, Sweden, in May, 1962: "The concept of taxing the rich according to their needs, is now well established as a simple canon of social justice in all democratic countries. It requires only little imagination to lift this concept to a higher plane, and to extend its scope from the country to the universe."

Karl Marx phrased it a little differently: he said, "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." And he left out the universe.

Maybe what U Thant had in mind was the assessment of UN member nations. Sixty-one nations, one-half of the 122 member nations of the UN, were assessed less than 3 per cent of the UN budget for the year 1967. The precise amount is 2.56 per cent.

If we add 21 nations, bringing the total to 82, or two-thirds of the UN membership, the assessment was 5.52 per cent, according to the Yearbook of the United Nations.

Each of these 82 nations has one vote in the General Assembly. The United States has one vote.

The 1967 assessment upon the United States was 31.91 per cent. The assessment upon the 12 nations with Communist governments totalled 21.69 per cent.

When it comes to the specialized programs and agencies, and the so-called voluntary programs, the gap is even wider. UN contributions amount to about 45 per cent of the overall total. Here the Communist nations lag even farther behind. Among other failures, they refused to contribute to the "peacekeeping operations" in Palestine or the Congo, in spite of World Court rulings that the assessments were legal.

"The expenses of the Organization," says the UN Charter, "shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly."

The contribution of the United States to the regular budget has been limited by Congress to not more than one-third of the total for any year. But year after year, Washington borrows money to pay the assessments and contributions, leaving a colossal debt that our children and their children will have to pay.

Of course, being debt-ridden and poor, our children may find U Thant's dictum to their advantage, and others, richer, may pay their assessments.

ANTI-AMERICANISM IN OUR INSTITUTIONS

Recently Senator James Eastland introduced a bill to strengthen the Internal Security act of 1950. One provision in the bill would make it a crime to give "aid or comfort" to any foreign nation or armed group engaged in "open hostilities against the United States."

We could expect the Farleft to oppose this bill; naturally they condemn resistance to communist aggression in South Vietnam. The really disturbing element is that some institutions of high learning are actually encouraging young people to give aid and comfort to the enemy and to oppose efforts to strengthen the security of the United States.

In one college, stacks of mineographed material relating to Senator Eastland's bill were distributed in the administration building. It urged students to send letter demanding that the bill be defeated, and included a form letter to be signed by the student and mailed. The student was not urged to think through the issue himself and form an opinion based on facts. He was asked to accept the material and mail a form letter as if he had no mind of his own. The material was unsigned, so that students could not question those who had distributed it.

Distributed in the same building was a list of lectures comprising "a new course on the war in Vietnam." The titles of the lectures clearly indicated the students would not be instructed in patriotism or the necessity of defending against aggression, and this institution is clearly endangering the future of our young people and of freedom by disseminating such propaganda. Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Senate Cabal tries to fix textile - steel - oil import quotas; surprise move could seriously hurt U.S. farmers; Canada quietly selecting new prime minister.

WASHINGTON -- Three key senators last week formed a backstage, high-powered log-rolling team to fix import quotas on textiles, steel and oil before the American public woke up to what was happening.

The three senators were: Ernest Hollings, freshman Democrat from South Carolina; Vance Hartke, the dovish Democrat from Indiana; and Russell Long, the ebullient Democrat from Louisiana, whose family owns several million dollars' worth of offshore oil leases in the Gulf of Mexico.

Together they formed a cabal which threatens to repeat the old log-rolling fiasco of the Hoover administration when the Smoot-Hawley Tariff act was put across on an unsuspecting public. This ended in demolishing American trade. It was one important factor which brought on the great depression.

The handsome Hollings, representing Southern Textile Manufacturers, suddenly tacked the textile import quota provision on the fiscal bill continuing telephone and automobile excise taxes. Hollings had done a lot of advance spadework. The bill shot through the senate 55 to 31.

Administratior senators were taken completely by surprise.

The textile industry has suffered no pain in recent years. Between 1961 and 1966, its sales jumped from $13.4 billion to $19.5 billion. Its profits zoomed from $280 million to $700 million in the same period.

During the two-year period from 1965 to 1967 there was an increase in textiles employment despite greatly increased automation.

Nevertheless, senate log-rollers had their way.

OTHER LOG-ROLLERS

Sitting in the senate wings was Adroit, Able Eddie McCormack, Nephew of speaker John McCormack, and former attorney general of Massachusetts. He is the no. 1 mastermind of the steel lobby. Working with him was Senator Hartke, who has contributed constructive ideas toward peace and usually has been a champion of the consumers.

However, big steel -- Bethlehem, Inland, U.S. steel -- has plants and loading facilities on the Lake Michigan shore of Indiana. Hartke has become the spearhead of the lobby to put quotas on steel imports.

Simultaneously, Sen. Russell Long spearheads the lobby for Bil. Russell's family is the chief stockholder in the win-or-lose oil company with millions invested in Louisiana oil.

These three senators have corralled enough votes among oil, steel and textile senators to override the fact that today the United States exports $4 billion more than it imports, and the warning that American farmers would be seriously hurt first if import quotas are placed on textiles, steel and oil. Foreign countries would retaliate immediately.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler has also warned that the import quotas would jeopardize our balance of trade and further hurt the dollar.

The National Retail Merchants Association has warned that the quotas would lead to substantial price increases for the American public.

QUIET CANADIAN DEMOCRACY

In contrast to the barnstorming and ballyhoo over choosing the next U.S. President, Canada will select a new prime minister next weekend in comparative quiet.

Technically, the liberal party will simply replace its retiring leader, Prime Minister Lester Pearson, with a new party chieftain. Because the liberal party is in power, the successor will automatically take over as Prime Minister without the fuss of a national election.

The voters, however, aren't being ignored. The party will choose a leader who seems most likely to win the next official election, which probably will be called sometime in the summer.

Thus the Canadian candidates, like their American counterparts, are out beating the bushes to demonstrate their voter appeal. The liberals even have their Bobby Kennedy -- Pierre Elliot Trudeau, a flamboyant, 44-year-old newcomer to politics -- who has shaken up the party hierarchy.

Just as Bobby broke into the government as attorney general, Trudeau is minister of justice. Like Bobby, Trudeau is too impatient to wait for an orderly advance up the political ladder. His greatest appeal, like Bobby's, is with youth. But like Bobby, he may need more seasoning before he is qualified to take over the government.

Therefore, the liberals are more likely to turn to the veteran, scholarly minister of external affairs, Paul Martin, who has a greater claim on the party. Trudeau's headline appeal and Martin's solid party base make them the front runners.

By tradition, it is also a French-Canadian's turn at leadership. Both Trudeau and Martin are Bilingual and come from French - Canadian stock.

Two Anglo - Saxons, minister of Transport Paup Hellyer and minister of trade Robert Winters, also have large followings. Winters, a former businessman, preaches "fiscal integrity," which appeals to the conservatives in his party. There are seven other candidates, all well qualified.

Best guess is that the quietly Able Martin will come out of the Ottawa convention this weekend as Canada's new leader. His selection would be reassuring to Washington, for Martin has lived most of his life in Windsor, opposite Detroit, and has had many conferences with the state department. The White House will be watching the Canadian choice closely.

Inside Labor

WORRIED BY NIXON:
Nation's Labor Chiefs Await LBJ's Signal On Push For '68 Presidential Candidate

Washington, D. C.: -- It's a long time from April to September, but the elders of labor will be playing a waiting game.

They'll mix prayers with pragmatism while awaiting a presidential candidate to whom to pledge themselves. They'll pray that Lyndon Johnson and Nelson Rockefeller didn't mean it.

They'll coddle Hubert Humphrey. They'll give Bob Kennedy the ice. They'll confer with Gene McCarthy, whose men began seeking out Mr. Labor, George Meany, within an hour after Mr. Johnson declined.

But make no mistake about any of this. These labor men know the implications of power as intimately as Dali knows Dadism. They know their own strength. And they know the strength of an American president.

And they know that starting nex Jan. 20, the next president of the U. S. for the next eight years may well be Richard Nixon (who they believe could only be beaten by Lyndon Johnson).

So the labor leaders, active in some 1500 cities, are grabbing up all the options they can. They know the significance of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) with its caravans and cash flow -- which, when totaled for all labor, could come to $50 million.

The labor leaders are placing themselves in a bargaining posture -- as usual. Certainly they reacted to the President's funereal valedictory. For the labor chiefs, it reeked of the end of their years of victory. They sat and told each other gloomily that the tornado-tongued Hubert Humphrey could not even carry Minnesota.

He would plunge in with all of Mr. Johnson's liabilities and none of his machinery -- though, only 10 minutes after the camera's red eye blinked black, a White House aide telephoned New York State's Johnsonian leaders to keep the headquarters going.

As for Gene McCarthy, none of the Senator's close aides had even the home phone numbers of high AFL-CIO leaders, for swift calls Sunday night.

As for Bob Kennedy, one of the very top labor men said, "If the fight is between Bobby Kennedy and Dick Nixon, I'm moving to Canada and renouncing my U. S. citizenship."

This should be modified by the fact that those close to George Meany tell that labor's power in the White House will slip from the AFL-CIO president to Walter Reuther, United Auto Workers president, should Kennedy be elected.

While the labor leaders, who had been running a series of regional political action sessions on how to reelect Lyndon Johnson, play the waiting game, they'll wait for some supersonic signal from the President. What does he want?

He opted out on a high moral, political and patriotic tone. So he can't bikini himself and dash back into the partisan political surf. Or, he might back a loser. If so, his refurbished national esteem would disappear.

So the signal will have to be inaudible to anybody but George Meany. But what if the signal never comes -- though in private, the President loathes Bob Kennedy more than any of us have ever indicated in print.

The labor leaders probably will back Bob Kennedy first against McCarthy (who they say is a 62 per cent liberal) and, later, certainly against Dick Nixon.

After talking to what seems like an endless number of labor leaders who keep saying, "Well, I really don't know" (and they meant it), one discovers their discomfort with "Bobby" is more personal than political.

They can take him politically though they can't socially. Everybody rubs everybody else the wrong way -- and labor leaders don't jump in the pool. They play gin rummy alongside. A handful of union leader feel so strongly about "Bobby" that they said they'd prefer Nixon.

Most will back Kennedy, but with how much, and with what toughness, and with what actual or apparent political karate, is uncertain.

Do they really go for Nixon's jugular? If they do and he wins, can they afford to have been so deadly in their propaganda that they get frozen out of the White House for eight years?

Only a handful of us will remember that there was strong Republican labor support for Dwight Eisenhower. And he paid off on that IOU.

He appointed the plumbers union chief, Marty Durkin, Secretary of Labor of the U. S. And when the late Mr. Durkin, who was ill, resigned with a slashing attack on President Eisenhower, the General, after consulting with his Vice President, turned the other cheek.

He appointed the late Jim Mitchell who, in the closing days of 1960, was given one of the most fraternal of labor banquets where, lo, all union chiefs agreed that "Jim" had been the "best Secretary of Labor" in history.

Believing themselves without a potential winner, labor may want to lose softly with the loser. They may have to live with Dick Nixon--and their houses are only a square apart.

The labor men are pros. But this waiting game will be the most tortured they've played.

WHY, IN THE NAME OF GOD?

For 21 years we have sent our young men overseas to Europe by the thousands -- so many there's scarcely a home in the land which hasn't had a member there in the army of occupation for one reason -- to keep communism from taking over the free world.

For 21 years we've sent our fine young men to Africa, the Near East, the Far East, the islands of the Pacific, up into the arctic cold and down into tropical heat, kept them there month after weary month, year after weary year, for just one reason -- to keep communism from taking over the free world.

For 21 long years this nation has spent billion upon billions to finance the Marshall Plan, subsidize the UN and NATO, help the neutrals, help even Communist countries and those who twist our tail and spit in our face every chance they get until we have so squandered our reserves that should all the countries to whom we now owe gold call for repayment at once we could give them every ounce and still not be square with the world, for just one reason -- to prevent the spread of communism and the enslavement of free men.

For 21 long years this nation, after winning a great war, has strained its economic resources, marshalled its engineers and scientists, used up raw materials and manpower much better used for other purposes to create, maintain and enlarge an arsenal not only for our own armed forces but for a long list of other nations for one reason, and one reason only, to deter Communist aggression and world domination.

Twice in the past two decades, we have drafted our young men and reservists to fight and die--and thousands upon thousands have given their lives in Korea and Vietnam -- for just one reason -- to resist Communist aggression.

This has been our national purpose for 21 years. This had been our contribution to the life and death struggle to preserve human freedom and prevent the enslavement of that portion of the world population which has not already been enslaved.

No nation has ever been so generous, so unselfish, so dedicated, so self-sacrificing for so long in all the history of mankind. Ours has been a noble purpose, one for which our young men have been willing to give their time, and their lives, and for which Americans have been willing to spend their treasure.

Then why, in the name of God, do we permit the enemy we resist without the borders of this country to work within it unrestrained -- protected by every legal and gnat so-called liberal interpreters of the law can gag on?

We have seen/Aug.16/ a federal judge, fortunately overruled almost without a hearing by a higher court, dare to enjoin a congressional committee seeking to investigate treason in this country -- trying to determine what aid and comfort, material and spiritual, Americans are giving our enemies.

We have heard Americans take the stand, admit they are Communists, boast how much they have aided, are aiding, and will aid the very Communist soldiers who are killing men wearing the uniform of this country and sent into battle by our own government. We have listened to them defy their country and the congress, disrupt a congressional hearing, call the president of this country a murderer -- and let a few off with nothing more than a $10 fine, while others weren't punished at all!

We have seen treasonable Americans seek by force to prevent the loading of supplies being shipped to soldiers fighting for this country half a globe away and not even be arrested! In fact, simple-minded commentators and reporters have dared to criticize an American marine who pushed a crazed young female traitor out of the way of such a shipment because she stumbled and fell into a ditch full of water, which they intimated was an act of brutality.

We have seen others try to break up college draft examinations, interfere with the work of draft boards, disturb the wedding of our president's daughter, demean and call men moving toward Vietnam murderers of women and children.

And, if we've done anything, it has been nothing more than to slap them on the wrist and let them know we think they are naughty children!

Why, in the name that is right, do we suffer this? Why do we let people too young to vote or be elected to congress influence our foreign policy? Why do we listen to people so wet behind the ears they'd never be hired for a position of any importance by a private business firm? Why do we spend so much time, blood, treasure and effort opposing communism abroad and let young punks and perverts, who boast they are Communists, fight our government here at home?

Why do we protect with all the force of the law the right of admitted Communists to teach in publicly-supported colleges and universities?

Why do we listen to prattle about the right of dissent by hopheads from hashish or LSD parties on our campuses, when other young men have been drafted to give up jobs, leave their families, and die in foreign jungles all in the name of resistance to communism?

Why can't a nation which only 25 years ago could move whole populations of Japanese, whose only crime was being the same blood as that of one of our enemies, crack down upon these traitors in or midst today?

Why can't we shut these people up for as long as our men are dying for us? If communism be wrong, and if its spread should be prevented, why must we give these agitators freedom to spread it here in America -- nay, even protect them as they spread it?

Why, when there is open treason in our streets, on our campuses, even in our congressional hearings, can anyone think that to let it continue unpunished is not to break faith with our men fighting overseas?

If communism must be resisted at all costs in Berlin and Saigon, why shouldn't we resist it with all our might and main in Washington, and Berkeley, and Chicago?

According to the National Association of Manufacturers, he stated with the large government deficits, a long unfavorable balance of payments, a new crisis in international finances, and general uncertainty for business and the domestic economy, it is a good time to prove for a better way of doing things. He suggests that one way is to slow down federal spending and apply common sense in setting of budget priorities.

Moreover, the ever-increasing number of complaints, misdeliveries, nondeliveries, delays and backups are a clear warning that even more serious trouble lies ahead unless corrective steps are taken. As long as the department remains a politically dominated agency where appointments and all promotions, from postmaster to carrier, are based on political favoritism rather than merit, postal experience and good management procedures, a first-class postal system cannot be developed and maintained."

NORTH KOREA PLAYS DANGEROUS GAME

Lacking not only the answers to some essential questions concerning the seizure of the USS Pueblo but, more importantly, lacking insight into the minds of the leaders of North Korea, it is impossible to estimate the full seriouesness of this "incident."

Serious enough it is, to be sure. The capture of another nation's ship on the high seas is and always has been, according to what little law exists, between sovereign states, an act of war. It fully warrants the limited military preparations this nation has made, in conjunction with its diplomatic protestations.

Coming hard upon the exposure of a plot by North Korean infiltrators to assassinate the president of South Korea and other government officials, it suggests we are dealing with a bunch of fanatics who are itching for a replay of the Korean War.

It hardly seems possible, however, that North Korea actually desires to force issues to the point of war, that it is so out of touch with reality that it believes the United States is too overextended in South Vietnam to undertake another military effort in Korea.

Even did the North Koreans believe that, they must be aware that South Korea, which would inevitably be drawn into any conflict, is not South Vietnam. It is a strong, unified, well-armed country immeasurably better able to defend itself than it was in 1950.

More likely is it that North Korea is confident that the United States will endure almost any provocation short of full-scale attack on South Korea rather than embark on another war, and that pulling Uncle Sam's beard is a good way to impress friends and influence other Asians.

If so, it is a dangerous game to play. Small provocations have a way of setting off bigger provocations unless the whole process is immediately damped by diplomacy.

North Korea's release of an obviously phony confession by the skipper of the Pueblo, its denunciatory reply to our initial approaches and Russia's unwillingness or inability to use its good offices have done nothing to ease tensions.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has advised the North Koreans to "cool it." But the danger at the moment stems from the fact that, thinking they have achieved some sort of propaganda victory, they may be playing it too cool.

THE PARLIAMENT OF MAN

U Thant, Secretary-General of the United Nations, said in a speech at Uppsala, Sweden, in May, 1962: "The concept of taxing the rich according to their needs, is now well established as a simple canon of social justice in all democratic countries. It requires only little imagination to lift this concept to a higher plane, and to extend its scope from the country to the universe."

Karl Marx phrased it a little differently: he said, "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." And he left out the universe.

Maybe what U Thant had in mind was the assessment of UN member nations. Sixty-one nations, one-half of the 122 member nations of the UN, were assessed less than 3 per cent of the UN budget for the year 1967. The precise amount is 2.56 per cent.

If we add 21 nations, bringing the total to 82, or two-thirds of the UN membership, the assessment was 5.52 per cent, according to the Yearbook of the United Nations.

Each of these 82 nations has one vote in the General Assembly. The United States has one vote.

The 1967 assessment upon the United States was 31.91 per cent. The assessment upon the 12 nations with Communist governments totalled 21.69 per cent.

When it comes to the specialized programs and agencies, and the so-called voluntary programs, the gap is even wider. UN contributions amount to about 45 per cent of the overall total. Here the Communist nations lag even farther behind. Among other failures, they refused to contribute to the "peacekeeping operations" in Palestine or the Congo, in spite of World Court rulings that the assessments were legal.

"The expenses of the Organization," says the UN Charter, "shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly."

The contribution of the United States to the regular budget has been limited by Congress to not more than one-third of the total for any year. But year after year, Washington borrows money to pay the assessments and contributions, leaving a colossal debt that our children and their children will have to pay.

Of course, being debt-ridden and poor, our children may find U Thant's dictum to their advantage, and others, richer, may pay their assessments.

ANTI-AMERICANISM IN OUR INSTITUTIONS

Recently Senator James Eastland introduced a bill to strengthen the Internal Security act of 1950. One provision in the bill would make it a crime to give "aid or comfort" to any foreign nation or armed group engaged in "open hostilities against the United States."

We could expect the Farleft to oppose this bill; naturally they condemn resistance to communist aggression in South Vietnam. The really disturbing element is that some institutions of high learning are actually encouraging young people to give aid and comfort to the enemy and to oppose efforts to strengthen the security of the United States.

In one college, stacks of mineographed material relating to Senator Eastland's bill were distributed in the administration building. It urged students to send letter demanding that the bill be defeated, and included a form letter to be signed by the student and mailed. The student was not urged to think through the issue himself and form an opinion based on facts. He was asked to accept the material and mail a form letter as if he had no mind of his own. The material was unsigned, so that students could not question those who had distributed it.

Distributed in the same building was a list of lectures comprising "a new course on the war in Vietnam." The titles of the lectures clearly indicated the students would not be instructed in patriotism or the necessity of defending against aggression, and this institution is clearly endangering the future of our young people and of freedom by disseminating such propaganda. Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Senate Cabal tries to fix textile - steel - oil import quotas; surprise move could seriously hurt U.S. farmers; Canada quietly selecting new prime minister.

WASHINGTON -- Three key senators last week formed a backstage, high-powered log-rolling team to fix import quotas on textiles, steel and oil before the American public woke up to what was happening.

The three senators were: Ernest Hollings, freshman Democrat from South Carolina; Vance Hartke, the dovish Democrat from Indiana; and Russell Long, the ebullient Democrat from Louisiana, whose family owns several million dollars' worth of offshore oil leases in the Gulf of Mexico.

Together they formed a cabal which threatens to repeat the old log-rolling fiasco of the Hoover administration when the Smoot-Hawley Tariff act was put across on an unsuspecting public. This ended in demolishing American trade. It was one important factor which brought on the great depression.

The handsome Hollings, representing Southern Textile Manufacturers, suddenly tacked the textile import quota provision on the fiscal bill continuing telephone and automobile excise taxes. Hollings had done a lot of advance spadework. The bill shot through the senate 55 to 31.

Administration senators were taken completely by surprise.

The textile industry has suffered no pain in recent years. Between 1961 and 1966, its sales jumped from $13.4 billion to $19.5 billion. Its profits zoomed from $280 million to $700 million in the same period.

During the two-year period from 1965 to 1967 there was an increase in textiles employment despite greatly increased automation.

Nevertheless, senate log-rollers had their way.

OTHER LOG-ROLLERS

Sitting in the senate wings was Adroit, Able Eddie McCormack, Nephew of speaker John McCormack, and former attorney general of Massachusetts. He is the no. 1 mastermind of the steel lobby. Working with him was Senator Hartke, who has contributed constructive ideas toward peace and usually has been a champion of the consumers.

However, big steel -- Bethlehem, Inland, U.S. steel -- has plants and loading facilities on the Lake Michigan shore of Indiana. Hartke has become the spearhead of the lobby to put quotas on steel imports.

Simultaneously, Sen. Russell Long spearheads the lobby for oil. Russell's family is the chief stockholder in the win-or-lose oil company with millions invested in Louisiana oil.

These three senators have corralled enough votes among oil, steel and textile senators to override the fact that today the United States exports $4 billion more than it imports, and the warning that American farmers would be seriously hurt first if import quotas are placed on textiles, steel and oil. Foreign countries would retaliate immediately.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler has also warned that the import quotas would jeopardize our balance of trade and further hurt the dollar.

The National Retail Merchants Association has warned that the quotas would lead to substantial price increases for the American public.

Nevertheless, the log-rolling combine in congress so far as got its way.

As for Bob Kennedy, one of the very top labor men said, "If the fight is between Bobby Kennedy and Dick Nixon, I'm moving to Canada and renouncing my U. S. citizenship."

This should be modified by the fact that those close to George Meany fell that labor's power in the White House will slip from the AFL-CIO president to Walter Reuther, United Auto Workers president, should Kennedy be elected.

While the labor leaders, who had been running a series of regional political action sessions on how to reelect Lyndon Johnson, play the waiting game, they'll wait for some supersonic signal from the President. What does he want?

He opted out on a high moral, political and patriotic tone. So he can't bikini himself and dash back into the partisan political surf. Or, he might back a loser. If so, his refurbished national esteem would disappear.

So the signal will have to be inaudible to anybody but George Meany. But what if the signal never comes -- though in private, the President loathes Bob Kennedy more than any of us have ever indicated in print.

The labor leaders probably will back Bob Kennedy first against McCarthy (who they say is a 62 per cent liberal) and, later, certainly against Dick Nixon.

After talking to what seems like an endless number of labor leaders who keep saying, "Well, I really don't know" (and they meant it), one discovers their discomfort with "Bobby" is more personal than political.

They can take him politically though they can't socially. Everybody rubs everybody else the wrong way -- and labor leaders don't jump in the pool. They play gin rummy alongside. A handful of union leader feel so strongly about "Bobby" that they said they'd prefer Nixon.

Most will back Kennedy, but with how much, and with what toughness, and with what actual or apparent political karate, is uncertain.

Do they really go for Nixon's jugular? If they do and he wins, can they afford to have been so deadly in their propaganda that they get frozen out of the White House for eight years?

Only a handful of us will remember that there was strong Republican labor support for Dwight Eisenhower. And he paid off on that IOU.

He appointed the plumbers union chief, Marty Durkin, Secretary of Labor of the U. S. And when the late Mr. Durkin, who was ill, resigned with a slashing attack on President Eisenhower, the General, after consulting with his Vice President, turned the other cheek.

He appointed the late Jim Mitchell who, in the closing days of 1960, was given one of the most fraternal of labor banquets where, lo, all union chiefs agreed that "Jim" had been the "best Secretary of Labor" in history.

Believing themselves without a potential winner, labor may want to lose softly with the loser. They may have to live with Dick Nixon--and their houses are only a square apart.

The labor men are pros. But this waiting game will be the most tortured they've played.

NBA Announces Draft; Hawks Pick Harlicka

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An unholy war to sign college players was under way in pro basketball today.

The 22-year-old National Basketball Association announced it's first-round draft picks Wednesday with Westley Unseld, Tom Boerwinkle and Ron Williams among the top choices.

"I guess we have to enter into an unholy war of going after these players," declared George Mikan, commissioner of the rival one-year-old American Basketball Association.

Unseld, a 6-foot-8 two-time All-American at Louisville, was the No. 1 draft of the Baltimore Bullets in the NBA.

The Chicago Bulls chose the 7-foot Boerwinkle of Tennessee. Williams, 6-3 West Virginia star, was picked by the San Francisco Warriors.

None of the three has signed any contract. Each said they wanted to weigh all offers before deciding.

Unseld has been offered $500,000 over a four-year span to play with the Kentucky Colonels of the ABA. Baltimore did not reveal its offer although Buddy Jeannette, general manager of the Bullets, declared, "We're going to leave no stone unturned to sign Unseld to an NBA contract."

Boerwinkle, the No. 1 pick of Denver in the ABA, currently is playing in the Olympic trials at Albuquerque, N.M. "We certainly don't want to do anything to upset Boerwinkle's chances of making the Olympic team," said Dick Klein, Chicago general manager. "As a result we have had no direct negotiations with the boy."

Williams, drafted by New Orleans of the ABA, said he would like to play with the Warriors. However, he plans to consult with Bucky Waters, his West Virginia coach, before making a decision.

The NBA did sign two of its top draft choices. Bill Hewitt, 6-6 Southern California star, signed a three-year-contract with the Los Angeles Lakers. Bob Kauffman, 6-8 Little All-American from Guilford, N.C., College, also signed for three years with the Seattle Supersonics.

Elvin Hayes, Houston's All-American was signed last week by the San Diego Rockets for an estimated $440,000 for four years. The only player signed so far by the ABA is Wayne Chapman of Western Kentucky by the Kentucky Colonels.

The other No. 1 choices in the NBA draft were Don Smith, 6-8 of Iowa State by Cincinnati; Otto Moore, 6-11 of Pan American by Detroit; Charley Paulk, 6-8, of Northeastern Oklahoma by Milwaukee; Gary Gregor, 6-7 of South Carolina by Phoenix; Don Chaney, 6-5 of Houston by Boston; Skip Harlicka 6-1 of South Carolina by St. Louis; Shaler Halimon, 6-5 of Utah State by Philadelphia and Bill Hosket, 6-7 of Ohio State by New York.

None has been signed.

The NBA first-round draft was conducted over the telephone Monday by Commissioner Walter Kennedy. It was moved up from May 8 when the other rounds will be held.

The ABA draft is scheduled for April 27, but it held what Mikan called an evaluation meeting March 9. Each ABA team then named four college players it could consult before the draft.

Tigers Finish 2-5 On Southern Trip

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unheralded Nebraska had the best pre-season record but final results for Big Eight baseball teams touring the south and west with little success aided up to another wide open championship race starting Friday.

The Huskers will have an early chance to shake up the forecasters as they play at Oklahoma, rated a strong hitting club with pitching problems.

Colorado was 3-3 for a six-game series in Hawaii; defending champ Oklahoma State 3-4 on a trip to Texas; Oklahoma 3-6 in Texas and Arizona; Missouri finished 2-5 in Texas; Iowa State 2-6 with victories over Northwestern and Minnesota; Kansas 2-7 after a rugged start in the potent Riverside, Calif., tourney; and Kansas State 2-9-1 in the South.

Missouri is at Colorado, K-State at Kansas and Oklahoma State at Iowa State in the other opening Friday-Saturday series.

The Big Eight's 20-42-2 pre-season record in the south doesn't mean the league is in for a bad year. That's par for the course, since most of their foes had played 15 games or more in the sun.

A better indication of league strength is its 65-39 record in the NCAA's College World Series, with eight finalists and three crowns in the past 17 years. By May and June, the Big Eight catches up.

Oklahoma's Rusty Disbro won the series opener at Texas, Arizona and Arizona State— ranked No. 1 nationally — but OU lost the rest. In recent games, however, Rick Raczkowski, 6-foot-4 junior college transfer with a good knuckle ball, looked good in relief. He may become a starter.

Nebraska pitchers threw three four-hitters and a five-hitter at Houston, NCAA runner-up last year, giving up six runs in those four games.

Colorado's talkative Taylor Toomey, tall lefty with an outstanding 1.48 earned run average for two years, had control troubles and lost twice in Hawaii, but is expected to come back strong. Outfielder Lloyd Hutchinson, catcher Bob Anderson and pitcher-first baseman Dan Ruth got some big hits. Missouri needs pitching to go with Jerry Hurt.

K-State hit 10 home runs, three by Jack Woolsey, in 12 games down south. Van Bullock and Nick Horner led the erratic pitching. Junior Riggins is hitting .432 and Randy Cordill .370 for Kansas, but pitching is below expectations.

Oklahoma State has the pitching for another crown — the only question is the hitting. Sophomore Bob Richardson pitched a no-hitter against Houston. Veteran Bill Dobbs has looked solid. Coach Cnet Bryan, said "I must admit, this team has the best attitude of any team I've coached at OSU."

Iowa State lost a pair of 3-2 games to Northwestern and a 4-3 game to Minnesota. Pitching is questionable due to injuries, but the club has good potential.

Power Packed Detroit Picked

NEW YORK (AP) -- The best bet in the American League is that the Boston Red Sox will not repeat The Impossible Dream in 1968.

Everybody needs somebody somewhere. As a result the race could very well come down to the last day again.

Detroit needs a bullpen. Baltimore still has arm problems. Chicago always is short of runs. Minnesota has problems of shortstop and is concerned about Jim Katt's arm. California still has to carry a full head of steam for an entire season.

Detroit appears to have the best chance of making it all the way.

The Tigers haven't won since 1945 and just missed by one game last fall. They have solid front-line hitting and formidable front-line pitching. An injury to catcher Bill Freehan or outfielder Al Kaline could kill them but the loss of key players would derail any of the other contenders, too.

Mayor Smith's Tigers can throw good, if not spectacular, pitching at you every day with Mickey Lolich, Joe Sparma, Earl Wilson and Denny McLain in rotation.

The power of Kaline, Freehan, Willie Horton, Norm Cash and Dick McAuliffe should provide enough margin to overcome late inning letdowns by the relief corps.

Here's the way it looks from here:

1. Detroit
2. Baltimore
3. Chicago
4. Minnesota
5. California
6. Boston
7. Cleveland
8. New York
9. Washington
10. Oakland

Actually, the bullpen may be better with the addition of Denny Ribant and some young arms from the farm system.

Baltimore has a real solid ball club all the way, except for that pitching department where Hank Bauer already has been having problems. The Robinson boys, Frank and Brooks, and Boog Powell and Curt Blefary, swing heavy bats that could take it all if the pitching holds up.

Eddie Stanky added a proven hitter in Tommy Davis but it still will be up to pitchers like Joe Horlen, Gary Peters and Tommy John, plus that great bullpen headed by Hoyt Wilhelm, to do the job.

The Twins' chances were hurt by Katt's slowness in coming around after that elbow injury in late season. The left side of the infield is questionable although Cesar Tovar is available to plug any and all gaps.

In addition to Lonborg's slow recovery from knee surgery, the Red Sox have to worry about the weak hitting by Ton Conigliaro during the spring. The young outfielder, coming off a serious head injury that kept him out of the World Series, now is in Boston for an examination.

Alvin Dark has his work cut out for him in Cleveland. If he can get maximum performance from his pitchers, especially Sam McDowell, he can make a stir.

Washington tore everybody apart in the South and may be underrated. Camilo Pascual is back on the beam and a couple of rookies have looked good.

The Yankees are worried about Al Downing's arm and have problems at short and third. Pitching should save them from the cellar and could be the factor to move them ahead of Washington. Mickey Mantle still is in there swinging.

Oakland's new scenery should pep up the A's but they have so many youngsters with limited experience that it will be tough to move up.

Semi-Finals Set Tonight At Matthews

MATTHEWS - Four teams remain in the running for the championship of the Matthews independent basketball tournament after last night's quarter-finals in which the Daily Standard, Morehouse, Sikeston Bakers Union and Matthews bowed out.

Tournament favorites Risco and Mounds, Ill., crashed the century mark in posting wins with Risco opening the night with a 100-82 win over the Standard and the later ending the night's activities with a 101-33 win over Matthews.

Ross upset Morehouse, 74-67, behind the 29-point night of Larry Blunt. Bill Kelly had 14 for Morehouse.

Cape Girardeau's Hawks took a 61-48 win over the Bakers Union as Bill Kiehne fired in 18 and Bob Miller added 16 for the Hawks offensive punch. Josh Boyd had 16 for the Union.

Bill Burd fired in 27 points to lead Mounds's assault. Larry Boner had 11 for Matthews.

Tonight's pairings has Risco facing Ross at 7 p.m. and Cape Girardeau going against Mounds, Ill. at 8:30 p.m. The finals will be held tomorrow night with the winners trying for the title at 8:30 p.m. preceeded by the consolation match at 7 p.m.

Eisenhower Leads Opening Day Ritual

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has his last chance to avoid a baseball shutout as the Washington Senators open the 1968 season Monday against Minnesota.

Johnson, now 0-3 and the only President still waiting for his first winner in baseball's annual opening day ritual, may pass up the opportunity and call on teammate Hubert H. Humphrey to throw the inaugural ball. The vice president's relief record is 0-1.

Not since the depression days of Herbert Hoover has the presidential pitching record been so impoverished. Hoover needed four tries to watch a winner as the Senators squeezed out a 1-0 victory in his final appearance in 1932. And even then it took 10 innings.

The White House is still silent on whether Johnson, who has announced he won't run for reelection, will make the traditional trip to the ballpark next week for his fourth try. His attendance is uncertain.

Humphrey, the ever-ebullient, substitute, is No. 2 in this as well as other duties, although his pitching assignment could be complicated by the fact his baseball loyalties belong unabashedly to the Minnesota Twins.

The Senators, losers of five straight openers and thus responsible for Johnson's record, will be underdogs again next week against the Twins, who came within a game of winning the 1967 American League Pennant.

In recent years, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who once skipped an opener to play golf, leads his colleagues at 4-3. Franklin D. Roosevelt finished 4-4, Harry S. Truman bowed out at 3-4.

Outfielder Lloyd Hutchinson, catcher Bob Anderson and pitcher-first baseman Dan Ruth got some big hits. Missouri needs pitching to go with Jerry Hurt.

K-State hit 10 home runs, three by Jack Woolsey, in 12 games down south. Van Bullock and Nick Horner led the erratic pitching. Junior Riggins is hitting .432 and Randy Cordill .370 for Kansas, but pitching is below expectations.

Oklahoma State has the pitching for another crown — the only question is the hitting. Sophomore Bob Richardson pitched a no-hitter against Houston. Veteran Bill Dobbs has looked solid. Coach Chet Bryan, said "I must admit, this team has the best attitude of any team I've coached at OSU."

Iowa State lost a pair of 3-2 games to Northwestern and a 4-3 game to Minnesota. Pitching is questionable due to injuries, but the club has good potential.

Power Packed Detroit Picked

NEW YORK (AP) -- The best bet in the American League is that the Boston Red Sox will not repeat The Impossible Dream in 1968.

Everybody needs somebody somewhere. As a result the race could very well come down to the last day again.

Detroit needs a bullpen. Baltimore still has arm problems. Chicago always is short of runs. Minnesota has problems of shortstop and is concerned about Jim Katt's arm. California still has to carry a full head of steam for an entire season.

Detroit appears to have the best chance of making it all the way.

The Tigers haven't won since 1945 and just missed by one game last fall. They have solid front-line hitting and formidable front-line pitching. An injury to catcher Bill Freehan or outfielder Al Kaline could kill them but the loss of key players would derail any of the other contenders, too.

Mayor Smith's Tigers can throw good, if not spectacular, pitching at you every day with Mickey Lolich, Joe Sparma, Earl Wilson and Denny McLain in rotation.

The power of Kaline, Freehan, Willie Horton, Norm Cash and Dick McAuliffe should provide enough margin to overcome late inning letdowns by the relief corps.

Here's the way it looks from here:

1. Detroit
2. Baltimore
3. Chicago
4. Minnesota
5. California
6. Boston
7. Cleveland
8. New York
9. Washington
10. Oakland

Actually, the bullpen may be better with the addition of Denny Ribant and some young arms from the farm system.

Baltimore has a real solid ball club all the way, except for that pitching department where Hank Bauer already has been having problems. The Robinson boys, Frank and Brooks, and Boog Powell and Curt Blefary, swing heavy bats that could take it all if the pitching holds up.

Eddie Stanky added a proven hitter in Tommy Davis but it still will be up to pitchers like Joe Horlen, Gary Peters and Tommy John, plus that great bullpen headed by Hoyt Wilhelm, to do the job.

The Twins' chances were hurt by Katt's slowness in coming around after that elbow injury in late season. The left side of the infield is questionable although Cesar Tovar is available to plug any and all gaps.

In addition to Lonborg's slow recovery from knee surgery, the Red Sox have to worry about the weak hitting by Ton Conigliaro during the spring. The young outfielder, coming off a serious head injury that kept him out of the World Series, now is in Boston for an examination.

Alvin Dark has his work cut out for him in Cleveland. If he can get maximum performance from his pitchers, especially Sam McDowell, he can make a stir.

Washington tore everybody apart in the South and may be underrated. Camilo Pascual is back on the beam and a couple of rookies have looked good.

The Yankees are worried about Al Downing's arm and have problems at short and third. Pitching should save them from the cellar and could be the factor to move them ahead of Washington. Mickey Mantle still is in there swinging.

Oakland's new scenery should pep up the A's but they have so many youngsters with limited experience that it will be tough to move up.

Semi-Finals Set Tonight At Matthews

MATTHEWS - Four teams remain in the running for the championship of the Matthews independent basketball tournament after last night's quarter-finals in which the Daily Standard, Morehouse, Sikeston Bakers Union and Matthews bowed out.

Tournament favorites Risco and Mounds, Ill., crashed the century mark in posting wins with Risco opening the night with a 100-82 win over the Standard and the later ending the night's activities with a 101-33 win over Matthews.

Ross upset Morehouse, 74-67, behind the 29-point night of Larry Blunt. Bill Kelly had 14 for Morehouse.

Cape Girardeau's Hawks took a 61-48 win over the Bakers Union as Bill Kiehne fired in 18 and Bob Miller added 16 for the Hawks offensive punch. Josh Boyd had 16 for the Union.

Bill Burd fired in 27 points to lead Mounds's assault. Larry Boner had 11 for Matthews.

Tonight's pairings has Risco facing Ross at 7 p.m. and Cape Girardeau going against Mounds, Ill. at 8:30 p.m. The finals will be held tomorrow night with the winners trying for the title at 8:30 p.m. preceeded by the consolation match at 7 p.m.

Eisenhower Leads Opening Day Ritual

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has his chance to avoid a baseball shutout as the Washington Senators open the 1968 season Monday against Minnesota.

Johnson, now 0-3 and the only President still waiting for his first winner in baseball's annual opening day ritual, may pass up the opportunity and call on teammate Hubert H. Humphrey to throw the inaugural ball. The vice president's relief record is 0-1.

Not since the depression days of Herbert Hoover has the presidential pitching record been so impoverished. Hoover needed four tries to watch a winner as the Senators squeezed out a 1-0 victory in his final appearance in 1932. And even then it took 10 innings.

The White House is still silent on whether Johnson, who has announced he won't run for re-election, will make the traditional trip to the ballpark next week for his fourth try. His attendance is uncertain.

Humphrey, the ever-ebullient, substitute, is No. 2 in this as well as other duties, although his pitching assignment could be complicated by the fact his baseball loyalties belong unabashedly to the Minnesota Twins.

The Senators, losers of five straight openers and thus responsible for Johnson's record, will be underdogs again next week against the Twins, who came within a game of winning the 1967 American League Pennant.

In recent years, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who once skipped an opener to play golf, leads his colleagues at 4-3. Franklin D. Roosevelt finished 4-4, Harry S. Truman bowed out at 3-4.

Surtax Faces Harder Time Passing House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted for hiking taxes while holding down federal spending but election-year consideration and a parliamentary squabble with the House casts doubts on the final congressional verdict.

The Senate voted 57 to 31 Tuesday for a bill combining three major provisions:

— The 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes proposed by President Johnson, which has been blocked in the House Ways and Means Committee since last summer.

— A $6 billion reduction in federal spending.

Backers of the tax hike-spending cut proposal voiced confidence the Senate's strong endorsement of the measure boosted prospects for an eventual tax increase and some House members agreed with that analysis.

But the Senate vote also demonstrated that most congress members up for re-election this November may not be enthusiastic about voting for a tax increase.

Of the 28 senators expected to seek re-election this year, 19 voted against Tuesday's package proposal.

This problem is likely to be accentuated in the House, where all 435 members face re-election.

House and Senate conferees charged with forging a bill acceptable to both chambers scheduled their first meeting for late today.

Advance word from the House conferees was they would look favorably on few if any of the 18 provisions approved by the Senate.

The House traditionally has been jealous of its constitutional prerogative to originate tax measures in its Ways and Means Committee. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee, manager of the original excise-tax bill, said he saw little chance the House would accept the package amendments.

Long, who opposed the package plan, voiced belief Johnson's Sunday night speech, urging passage of a tax hike and expressing willingness to accept a spending cut, swung enough votes to win Senate approval. Long said Johnson's announcement he would not seek re-election also won him Senate sympathy.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., a co-sponsor of the package, agreed there was slight chance it would be accepted in the conference.

But Smathers, who will be a conferee, said he would insist that House leaders make some statement about greater friendliness toward a tax boost before he would agree to have the amendment dropped.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., the other co-sponsor, told a reporter he would be unwilling to settle for such a statement.

"Either we get a tax increase on this bill or I don't think we will get it," he said.

"If we wait for the House to act later, it will be close to the election, and it will never pass."

The package plan also calls for a $10 billion slash in new appropriations for the next year and a 315,000 rollback in the number of federal employes.

Other major amendments would:

— Repeal a freeze provision on federal matching funds for aid to Families with Dependent Children included in the 1967 Social Security act.

Fraud Detected In Viet Youth Group's Ranks

SAIGON (AP) — A youth group whose 32,000 members are supposed to expose fraud and corruption is having trouble. Its top leaders have been arrested for fraud and corruption.

The black-shirted Anticorruption Youth was founded in 1965 by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky when he was youth minister and premier. The organization is still under his wing, and he is reported greatly angered that the leaders fell into evil ways.

Those arrested March 15 were Dang Van Thu, national chief of the organization; Le Van Kha, inspector general of the group, who once was associated with a Buddhist group that tried to depose Ky when he was premier, and Le Van Thanh, head of Anticorruption Youth in Gia Dinh Province.

Ten other officers of the Gia Dinh section were arrested on charges of draft dodging. Another 600 members, accused of buying fraudulent draft exemption papers from the arrested men, have been called into the army.

The three top leaders are charged with misappropriation of government funds and the sale of fake draft exemption cards. The number of exemption cards involved is not known, but the price ran as high as 75,000 piasters, or $635. Also unclear is whether the draft exemptions were valid, which would mean complicity of government officials, or whether they were forgeries.

There are other charges against the youth group.

Early in January the Ministry of Youth was ordered by some unidentified official high in the government to pay Anticorruption Youth 6 million piasters for a one-month campaign to clear garbage from Saigon's streets.

The youth minister and officials of Anticorruption Youth say the organization received only a little over a million piasters, or about $8,500. But informed sources say the group spent less than 200,000 piasters for a few days' cleanup.

"On the first day of the garbage collection campaign, there were 300 Anticorruption Youth out on the streets working," one official says. "The second day there were 70. On the third day there were 30 and after that we stopped counting."

Lame Duck Day Raises Threat Of Defections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although few if any Cabinet resignations are foreseen, administration sources voice concern that many second-tier and third-tier officials will quit Washington in the nine remaining "lame duck" months of President Johnson's term.

Only 1 of the 11 Cabinet officers, Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, has old and obvious political ties that might draw him from Johnson's official family now that Johnson has declared himself out of 1968 politics.

As for the others, White House aides say they suspect there may be fewer resignations in the months ahead than in those just past.

Since late November Johnson has had to find new secretaries of defense, commerce, and health, education and welfare—as well as a new budget director and a new economic council chairman.

But if the lame-duck days of Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower are any guide, many bureaucrats in the echelons just below the Cabinet level will be scrambling for job security— in private industry or in safer political havens.

Cabinet officers seldom need to wonder where their next lucrative connection is coming from. But it is a bread-and-butter problem for most assistant secretaries, bureau heads and division chiefs. Below that, the winds of political change are not generally felt, even if a new party comes into office.

Truman suffered many defections in 1948, when even his subordinates figured he was a loser. Finding replacements became increasingly difficult, his associates admitted, until he confounded the forecasters with a stunning victory.

Similar problems may beset Johnson. But at the Cabinet level, some hitherto restive officers may be better content to remain, now that an end is in sight.

Postmaster General O'Brien, once a leader of President John F. Kennedy's famed inner circle called the "Irish Mafia," has given no clues to his plans.

SAIGON (AP) — A youth group whose 32,000 members are supposed to expose fraud and corruption is having trouble. Its top leaders have been arrested for fraud and corruption.

The black-shirted Anticorruption Youth was founded in 1965 by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky when he was youth minister and premier. The organization is still under his wing, and he is reported greatly angered that the leaders fell into evil ways.

Those arrested March 15 were Dang Van Thu, national chief of the organization; Le Van Kha, inspector general of the group, who once was associated with a Buddhist group that tried to depose Ky when he was premier, and Le Van Thanh, head of Anticorruption Youth in Gia Dinh Province.

Ten other officers of the Gia Dinh section were arrested on charges of draft dodging. Another 600 members, accused of buying fraudulent draft exemption papers from the arrested men, have been called into the army.

The three top leaders are charged with misappropriation of government funds and the sale of fake draft exemption cards. The number of exemption cards involved is not known, but the price ran as high as 75,000 piasters, or $635. Also unclear is whether the draft exemptions were valid, which would mean complicity of government officials, or whether they were forgeries.

There are other charges against the youth group.

Early in January the Ministry of Youth was ordered by some unidentified official high in the government to pay Anticorruption Youth 6 million piasters for a one-month campaign to clear garbage from Saigon's streets.

The youth minister and officials of Anticorruption Youth say the organization received only a little over a million piasters, or about $8,500. But informed sources say the group spent less than 200,000 piasters for a few days' cleanup.

"On the first day of the garbage collection campaign, there were 300 Anticorruption Youth out on the streets working," one official says. "The second day there were 70. On the third day there were 30 and after that we stopped counting."

Lame Duck Day Raises Threat Of Defections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although few if any Cabinet resignations are foreseen, administration sources voice concern that many second-tier and third-tier officials will quit Washington in the nine remaining "lame duck" months of President Johnson's term.

Only 1 of the 11 Cabinet officers, Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, has old and obvious political ties that might draw him from Johnson's official family now that Johnson has declared himself out of 1968 politics.

As for the others, White House aides say they suspect there may be fewer resignations in the months ahead than in those just past.

Since late November Johnson has had to find new secretaries of defense, commerce, and health, education and welfare—as well as a new budget director and a new economic council chairman.

But if the lame-duck days of Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower are any guide, many bureaucrats in the echelons just below the Cabinet level will be scrambling for job security—in private industry or in safer political havens.

Cabinet officers seldom need to wonder where their next lucrative connection is coming from. But it is a bread-and-butter problem for most assistant secretaries, bureau heads and division chiefs. Below that, the winds of political change are not generally felt, even if a new party comes into office.

Truman suffered many defections in 1948, when even his subordinates figured he was a loser. Finding replacements became increasingly difficult, his associates admitted, until he confounded the forecasters with a stunning victory.

Similar problems may beset Johnson. But at the Cabinet level, some hitherto restive officers may be better content to remain, now that an end is in sight.

Postmaster General O'Brien, once a leader of President John F. Kennedy's famed inner circle called the "Irish Mafia," has given no clues to his plans.

GEORGE BENJAMIN WILLIAMS

Bank Robber On List

WASHINGTON - George Benjamin Williams, a frequently paroled habitual bank robber with a 36-year criminal record, who is reportedly heavily armed and is charged with robbing in 1965 the same bank which he victimized in 1946, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

Said to prefer robbing small branch banks located in rural areas and not to be reluctant to use the pistol, rifle or shotgun he is known to habitually carry, Williams is described as a "loner." He is charged, in a federal warrant issued at Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 3, 1966, with bank robbery.

Williams and another armed man allegedly robbed the Newcastle Branch of the Bank of America, Newcastle, Calif., of $19,554 on the morning of Dec. 22, 1965. Wielding, .38 caliber pistols, the robbers entered the bank, forced the employees to lie on the floor, and threatened to shoot the victims in the head if they moved. It is charged that Williams' accomplice leaped over the bank counter and removed all the currency from the tellers' cages while Williams held the bank personnel at gunpoint. The bandits, who wore hats and had heavy beards, then forced the bank manager to unlock the vault to provide additional loot which was stuffed into a burlap bag before the gunmen fled in their getaway car parked in front of the bank.

In addition to threatening to kill any employees who did not cooperate, the robbers also warned the victims that there was a man with a machine gun outside.

One of the alleged bank robbers, a parolee from California was subsequently apprehended at Wells, Nevada, on January 19, 1966, and when arrested was found to have in his possession six fully loaded weapons and $10,000 of the bank loot.

Williams, who has spent most of his adult life in prison, allegedly participated in this bank robbery only three months after he was paroled from the California state penitentiary where he had been serving a sentence for possession of firearms by an ex-felon.

His criminal record began in 1931 when he was 20 and was arrested in Nevada on a charge of grand larceny. Upon conviction, he was given a sentence of 2 to 14 years in the Nevada State Prison from which he escaped, briefly, nine months later.

In 1935, while on parole from Nevada, he was arrested in California, convicted of grand theft and given a 1-to-5 year prison sentence.

In December, 1939, eight months after being discharged from prison, Williams was apprehended and convicted of possessing counterfiet coins. He was sentenced to three years in the United States Penitentiary at NcNeil Island, Wash.

During August, 1946, Williams began his gunpoint holdup spree in California when he and accomplices victimized a Walnut Grove, California, bank and also the Newcastel, California, bank, which he allegedly robbed again in 1965. Apprehended and convicted of these bank robberies in 1947, he was sentenced to 24 years at the McNeil Island, Washington, Federal penitentiary. After attempting to escape in 1949, he was given an additional sentence of one year and six months and was transferred to the United States Penitentiary at Alcatraz, Calif. Given a conditional release in 1955, he was returned to prison in 1960 after violating this privilege.

In July, 1963, one month after he was again paroled, Williams was arrested in California, subsequently convicted of possession of firearms by an ex-felon and given a six months' to five-year prison sentence. He was released on parole from this sentence on September 20, 1965, and three months later allegedly began his latest crime binge.

Williams is a white American, who was born in Malheur County, Oregon, on June 15, 1911. He is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 155 pounds, has blue eyes, brown, graying hair which is balding, a ruddy complexion and a medium build. The tip of his ring finger on his right hand is missing. Williams, who has a tattoo of a woman's head on his left forearm, has been employed as a construction worker, dairy worker, pipe fitter, barber and auto mechanic and formerly owned and operated his own mine.

This fugitive is said to be an avid outdoorsman who likes to camp out in romote areas for extended periods of time and to travel by foot or horseback. Williams speaks Spanish fluently, reportedly has camping equipment with him, and has also been known to prospect and roam extensively throughout mountainous regions. He reportedly dresses neatly on occasion, frequently wears glasses, and has been described by acquaintances and prison authorities as a "self-imposed isolationist," an "introvert" and a "river rat."

Williams has been the ruthless ringleader in several bank robberies, allegedly was armed with a revolver in the bank robbery for which he is currently being sought, and should be considered armed and very dangerous.

Should you have any information concerning George Benjamin Williams, you are requested to immediately notify the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

Trudeau Heads Line for Prime Minister Post

OTTAWA (AP) — Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau was a big favorite today to become Canada's next prime minister as the Liberal party assembled for a three-day convention to pick a successor to Lester B. Pearson.

With the vote still two days away, Trudeau declined to predict victory on the first vallot, and other contenders were reported putting out feelers for a stop-Trudeau drive.

The withdrawal from the race Wednesday of Fina ce Minister Mitchell Sharp and his support of Trudeau failed to halt feverish behind-the-scene maneuvers.

Fifteen of 19 announced candidates for the post of party leader, and with it the prime ministership, were still in the race, including seven Cambinet members.

Informal polls indicated Trudeau would lead on the first ballot by a substantial margin, but Foreign Minister Paul Martin, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and trade Minister Robert Winters also registered significant strength.

The latest Gallup poll showed Trudeau far out in front in popular support in urban centers. Thirty-two per cent of the persons quizzed named Trudeau their first choice with 14 per cent for Martin, 10 per cent for Winters and 4 per cent for Hellyer.

This may be a factor in the convention voting since the Liberals face a national election, probably within a few months.

Sharp, listed fifth in most polls, expressed belief that a majority of his followers would switch to Trudeau but this was disputed by all the other leading contenders. Martin, Hellyer and Winters all claimed they would get most of Sharp's delegates.

Sharp's switch did, however, bring to Trudeau the finance minister's elaborate campaign organization and it gave Trudeau a total of seven Cabinet ministers in his camp. Hellyer has four and Martin three.

Today's convention program was devoted mostly to worship meetings at which the eight leading candidates were given an opportunity to discuss domestic and foreign affairs and to answer questions from delegates.

The evening program was dedicated to Pearson, who is retiring at the age of 70 after five years as head of the government. He was to deliver his farewell speech to the 2,481 delegates, but was not expected to indicate which candidate he favors.

The convention will vote Saturday afternoon at its final session.

Voters Show Dislike for Incumbents

In the last seven elections for mayor and city council, 18 incumbents have run against opposition and 14 have been defeated.

Neither political party in this city of 17,083 seems to escape the voters' antipathy. Six of the incumbents rejected have been Democrats, eight were Republicans.

Robert A. Merrill, the present mayor, thinks the results prove merely that there is a healthy two-party system. He may speak as an authority. Merrill, a Democrat, was in office before 1965 but lost that year, only to be returned in a subsequent election. Merrill, incidentally, has one more year of his present term to serve. He hasn't indicated whether he'll take another crack at the hex next year.

Tent dresses have folded, space suits have been grounded and geometric blocks put back in their box. It's fashion and it's fun, but a girl is a girl is a girl. The 'nowest' clothes are out to show it. Perch an over-sized pair of rose-tinted spectacles on the tip of your nose and open your eyes very wide. The fashion view from here to spring and beyond is a garden blooming with separates for you to pick and put together.

ON YOUR MARK!

Hopskotch is happiness and jump rope is dandy, but the greatest game this spring is making, mixing, matching a wardrobe of separates. "Separatism" is a matter of proportion—all yours. The game aims at individualism; bringing out every girl's special beauty. Make your own rules and break them. The choice is multiple.

GET SET!

Here's a winning combination made from McCall's 9125 (Misses' Sizes) or 9126 (Young Junior/Teen Sizes). A lean, little shirt is tucked into a softly gathered dirndl and the two parts are pulled together with the right belt. When you make your first match, try a soft jersey fabric on top with a synthetic-blend fabric on the bottom. After this first hop toward spring, you will be ready for a skip and a jump into a flexible wardrobe of separates to take apart and put back together again in a variety of ways. Mixed matches are the sporting, smashing, dashing way to get about from now on.

"Separatism" is a thinking girl's game. Having quickly caught on to the fun of mixed-up matches, it is easy to understand that it takes more than one kind of thread to hold a pair together.

SEW!

The jersey shirt needs 'give" and "Dual Duty," a cotton covered dacron thread, has it. When it comes to the medium-weight fabric which you have chosen for the skirt, sew it up with Mercerized Cotton Sewing thread. Put your waist in snape by making the gathering stitches with "Heavy Duty" thread which has the extra muscle required for drawing up your gathers. The best way to put on buttons and keep them there is with "Silk Twist." If you are going to work your buttonholes by hand, use the same "Silk Twist." Bound or machine-made buttonholes should be done with the same thread as used in your garment construction. Take a color tip and select your thread one shade darker than your fabric. If you want to learn all the inside tips about matching the right thread to the fabric and the job at hand, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet S-807, "How to Choose THE RIGHT THREAD."

The most common minimum voting age in the United States is 21 although it is 18 in Kentucky and Georgia, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

A lean, little shirt is tucked into a softly gathered dirndl and the two parts are pulled together with the right belt. When you make your first match, try a soft jersey fabric on top with a synthetic-blend fabric on the bottom. After this first hop toward spring, you will be ready for a skip and a jump into a flexible wardrobe of separates to take apart and put back together again in a variety of ways. Mixed matches are the sporting, smashing, dashing way to get about from now on.

"Separatism" is a thinking girl's game. Having quickly caught on to the fun of mixed-up matches, it is easy to understand that it takes more than one kind of thread to hold a pair together.

SEW!

The jersey shirt needs 'give" and "Dual Duty," a cotton covered dacron thread, has it. When it comes to the medium-weight fabric which you have chosen for the skirt, sew it up with Mercerized Cotton Sewing thread. Put your waist in snape by making the gathering stitches with "Heavy Duty" thread which has the extra muscle required for drawing up your gathers. The best way to put on buttons and keep them there is with "Silk Twist." If you are going to work your buttonholes by hand, use the same "Silk Twist." Bound or machine-made buttonholes should be done with the same thread as used in your garment construction. Take a color tip and select your thread one shade darker than your fabric. If you want to learn all the inside tips about matching the right thread to the fabric and the job at hand, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet S-807, "How to Choose THE RIGHT THREAD."

Ann Landers

Father Entitled to Decent Treatment

Dear Ann Landers: How much does a daughter owe a father who never did anything for her?

Ever since I was knee-high I listened to my father complain about the government, his boss, his health, and his relatives. I remember crying myself to sleep night after night, praying as I wept, "Dear God, please make him go to work tomorrow."

When I was 18 I left home. I educated myself, have a fine position, and am happily married. My father still worries me with his problems. He writes, phones, sends telegrams, comes to visit much too often and gives me a migraine headache on the third day of his visit.

Recently he hinted that he expects us to look after him when he gets older. He has no job pension, only government Social Security, which isn't much. My husband dislikes my father intensely and has told me he would never give the old man a red cent.

Since I am the only child, my father has no one but me. He has alienated all his other relatives and is very much alone. What do you think? --- TORN

Dear Torn: You have a moral obligation to see that your father does not go hungry or without shelter. I am not suggesting that you be overly generous -- just decent. And, incidentally, your husband's attitude is less than lovely. Please tell him I said so.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife changed to my religion and married in my church. Her parents have been wonderful but her grandmother has never forgiven her.

Last week our first child was born. The baby has a reddish birthmark, the size of a dime, on his forehead. The grandmother says it is God's punishment because my wife left her religion. She says the child will carry it for life. I know this is pure balderdash but my wife is very upset. Please say something. -- J.L.

Dear J. L.: Birthmarks are not punishment for anything. Granny should be hauled up short for practicing witchcraft without a license. A good dermatologist can probably remove the birthmark when the child is older. Check it out.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is hard-working, a great father and your column has helped me realize what a gem he is.

These past several weeks Ed has been talking in his sleep. He keeps referring to "Louise." (This is a girl who works in his office.) All his remarks are very formal -- such as, "Louise, bring in the Houston file . . . Louis take a letter to Mr. Kensington. . ." I have been staying up until dawn waiting to hear something personal, but so far it's strictly business.

When Ed talks in his sleep he pronounces every word clearly--his diction is perfect. This makes me nervous. Do sleep talkers know what they are saying? Should I mention this to Ed when he is awake? ---DARK CIRCLES

Dear Dark: If Ed speaks clearly, consider yourself fortunate. It's those mumblers that can drive a wife crazy.

Sleep talkers do not know what they are saying. And what they say is not necessarily a replay of what they have said in the past. Ed's recitation simply means he is thinking about his work, and that's good, not bad.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Highways

Colonists from England brought the term highway to America. Wild animals there, as in America, traveled the grassy high ground in search of the best grazing land and public thoroughfares that followed these animal paths between communities became known as "high roads" or "high ways" and, finally, highway.

Tim Morris

Tim Morris Places in Judo Association Tourney

EVANSVILLE, Ind. -- Tim Morris, representing Sung Dug Kwan Judo Club of Evansville, placed in the eight year old division at the Indiana Judo Association and Judo Black Belt Federation Invitational Tournament held at Indianapolis.

Tim, who was promoted to the ranking yellow belt within his school, defeated his first three opponents, but lost for top honors in the final elimination match. Tim's younger brother Gary, five, was one of Indiana's youngest Judo players to participate in tournament competition. Gary shows great promise of being an outstanding Judo player, says Wesley Hughes, Second Degree Black Belt. Hughes is Tim and Gary's ranking instructor in their study of Judo.

Tim and Gary and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merlin E. Morris and sister, Julie, are former residents of Sikeston, Mo. who live in Evansville where Morris is employed by the Evansville Redevelopment Commission.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The Missouri School District Reorganization Commission will use the following guidelines or criteria when they draw a plan for setting up new public school districts in the state. These guidelines are:

Districts to include varied economic, racial and ethnic characteristics.

Cross county lines whenever necessary.

Urban and suburban districts of 5,000 pupils minimum with a desirable range of 10,000 to 30,000.

Sufficient taxable wealth in each district to support a reasonable part of the educational program cost.

The last of these criteria, that is "sufficient taxable wealth in each district," may prove difficult because of the wide variation in assessment practices, as well as the widely differing amounts of taxable wealth in school districts throughout the state. Just as, for example, some schools in St. Louis County have as high as $41,000 taxable valuation per child and others through the state down as low as $3200 per child.

Standarization of assessment practices which must be imposed, as they will not happen otherwise, could correct some of this. Larger districts will also help, but if all Missouri's children are to have anything like an opportunity for about the same education, this can be brought about only by much larger increases in state money to those districts unable to support an adequate school program through local taxes.

Welcome though it was, the last change in the foundation program which provided $10,000,000. more for the Missouri Schools, as recommended by the Governor and passed by a special session of the General Assembly, allocated the money as follows:

Increased equalization, that is aid to the poor schools, by $2.50 per pupil.

Increased the second level equalization quota and this goes to those schools who vote at least a $2.75 local levy, based on 30 per cent of true valuation, by $0.75 per pupil but increased the flat grant per pupil, that amount going to all schools regardless of their ability to support education, by $9.50. Thus the district with $41,000. valuation per child also received $9.50 per pupil as did the poor school with $3200. of local tax backing per child.

We do not think it is fair to Missouri's children, to allow these vast differences in the quality of educational programs, to exist.

In the area of charater training, moral, ethics, etc, it is somewhat difficult for a parent or teacher to tell a pupil that "Honesty is the best policy" that dishonesty or wrong doings do not pay when the cases of Senator Thomas Dodd and Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, prove that they do.

Pre-enrollment for all children whose parents wish them to attend public school kindergarden next fall will be held in each elementary school on Friday, April 19, 1968, from 8 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. In order to be enrolled, a child must be 5 years of age on or before September 15, 1968. He must have an up-to-date immunization record or to be in the process of getting it.

When enrolling, parents may indicate a preference for the morning session or an afternoon session. However, assignments must be made on the basis of bus routes, nearness to school and their valid reasons which must be taken into consideration.

Boy and Girl Week will be held during the week of May 12 through 17 with the following special days:

Sunday, May 12 is A Day In Church (or Sunday school).

Monday, May 13 is Citizenship and Patriotism Day in which we hope to emphasize the heritage which we enjoy and the responsibility which our freedom entails.

Wednesday, May 15 is Health and Safety Day.

Thursday and Friday, May 16 an 17 is Field Events Days in which contests and athletic events of a low degree of organizations are held.

Ribbons are awarded for many of these activities.

The Open House schedule, in which parents are invited and urged to attend have been set as follows:

Thursday, May 9 at Senior High School

Friday, May 10 at Middle School

Tuesday, May 21 at Matthews School

Wednesday, May 22 at Southwest and Lincoln Schools

Thursday, May 23 at Airport and Lee Hunter Schools.

During Open House exhibits and or examples of work done by students, displays of education materials or techniques, etc., are on display for visitors.

First grade pre-enrollment will be held in all elementary schools on Friday, May 10 from 8:00 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. All children, 6 years of age on or before September 15, 1968, are eligible to enroll. An exception is that children who have attended a full year of public school kindergarten in other districts are eligible for enrollment, if they are 5 years and 10 months of age on September 15, 1968.

Birth certificates and immunizations are required for first grade enrollment. Children without a birth certificate or incomplete immunization will be temporarily enrolled but may not attend classes when school opens until these requirements are met.

It is very important that parents of this years 5th and 6th graders, who next year will be at Middle School, attend the orientation programs which have been scheduled. This schedule is as follows:

Lee Hunter -6th grade -Friday, March 29, 7:00 p.m.

Lee Hunter - 5th grade - Wednesday, April 17, 7:00 p.m.

Airport - 5th Grade - Tuesday, April 2, 7:00 p.m.

Airport -6th grade - Thursday, April 18, 7:00 p.m.

Lincoln - 5th grade - Wednesday, April 3, 7:00 p.m.

Matthews -5th grade - Thursday, April 4, 7:00 p.m.

Matthews - 6th grade - Tuesday, April 16, 7:00 p.m.

Southwest - 5th grade - Monday, April 8, 7:00 p.m.

Southwest - 6th grade Tuesday, April 9, 7:00 p.m.

If for some reason you cannot attend this meeting, individual meetings will be necessary with school officials at a later date.

If You Were the Judge

Act Does Not Admit Liability

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

While running may be good for the figure, it wasn't a good idea when Margie was trying to cross a street. Looking like an angel, she almost ended up with wings when motorist Marty ran her down. Fortunately, however, Marty rushed her to a hospital in his car and her life was saved. And, for months thereafter, Marty checked with the hospital regularly just to make sure that Margie would be alright. Thereafter, however, Margie checked on Marty and sued him for damages.

"Obviously," she told the judge, "Marty kept an eye on my condition because he knew that he was responsible for my injuries. What's more, he took me to the hospital for the same reason. He knew the accident was his fault and he acted out of guilt."

"That's nonsense," was Marty's answer. "I took her to the hospital out of the goodness of my heart. And, I kept checking on her in the hospital only because as a human being, I was concerned about her. But, none of this can be construed as my being at fault for the accident. I was merely being a good Samaritan."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider the actions of good Samaritan Marty as proof that he knew that the accident was his fault?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that because somebody picks up someone and takes that person to a hospital and is solicitous for the welfare of that person, it cannot be construed as an admission of liability. That a person acts as a decent citizen with proper humane sensibilities, concluded the judge, cannot be distorted into such an admission.

Ann Landers

Father Entitled to Decent Treatment

Dear Ann Landers: How much does a daughter owe a father who never did anything for her?

Ever since I was knee-high I listened to my father complain about the government, his boss, his health, and his relatives. I remember crying myself to sleep night after night, praying as I wept, "Dear God, please make him go to work tomorrow."

When I was 18 I left home. I educated myself, have a fine position, and am happily married. My father still worries me with his problems. He writes, phones, sends telegrams, comes to visit much too often and gives me a migraine headache on the third day of his visit.

Recently he hinted that he expects us to look after him when he gets older. He has no job pension, only government Social Security, which isn't much. My husband dislikes my father intensely and has told me he would never give the old man a red cent.

Since I am the only child, my father has no one but me. He has alienated all his other relatives and is very much alone. What do you think? --- TORN

Dear Torn: You have a moral obligation to see that your father does not go hungry or without shelter. I am not suggesting that you be overly generous -- just decent. And, incidentally, your husband's attitude is less than lovely. Please tell him I said so.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife changed to my religion and married in my church. Her parents have been wonderful but her grandmother has never forgiven her.

Last week our first child was born. The baby has a reddish birthmark, the size of a dime, on his forehead. The grandmother says it is God's punishment because my wife left her religion. She says the child will carry it for life. I know this is pure balderdash but my wife is very upset. Please say something. -- J.L.

Dear J. L.: Birthmarks are not punishment for anything. Granny should be hauled up short for practicing witchcraft without a license. A good dermatologist can probably remove the birthmark when the child is older. Check it out.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is hard-working, a great father and your column has helped me realize what a gem he is.

These past several weeks Ed has been talking in his sleep. He keeps referring to "Louise." (This is a girl who works in his office.) All his remarks are very formal -- such as, "Louise, bring in the Houston file . . . Louis take a letter to Mr. Kensington. . ." Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, April 4, the 95th day of 1968. There are 271 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, the U.S. Senate approved, by a vote of 82-6, a resolution of war against Germany.

On this date—

In 1932, Professor C.G. King of the University of Pittsburgh isolated Vitamin C.

In 1933, 73 lives were lost when the U.S. Navy dirigible Akron fell into the Atlantic off New Jersey.

Ten years ago — The first chapter of the scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, was established at a Negro college, Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

Five years ago — A White House advisory commission urged a massive attack on importers and large distributors of illegal drugs.

One year ago — It was disclosed that the 500th U.S. plane had been lost in the bombing of North Vietnam.

A LARGE CYPRESS TREE, measuring between 90 and 100 feet high, and said to be over 150 years old, tumbled down in the tornadic winds last night at 8:10 p.m. on the Lincoln Scherer farm on highway Y, half mile east of Hunters gin. The tree struck the edge of the home and blocked the garage. Farm hands spend this morning clearing the 50-foot portion that fell. The base of the tree measured more than 10 feet.

James Wyatt Dies at Home

James Richard "Butch" Wyatt, 44, a route salesman for Tom's Sales Company in the Sikeston area, died unexpectedly at 6 a.m. today of a heart attack at his home, 204 Daniel.

He was born April 22, 1923, in Tennessee, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wyatt.

He married the former Geneva Schwab, who survives.

Other survivors are five sons, James Donald, Daniel, Douglas, William Dale and David Wyatt, all of Sikeston; one sister, Mrs. Louise Spain of Alexander City, Ala.; two half brothers, Gilbert and Ovid Wyatt, both of Kennett; and one half sister, Mrs. Oma Ammon, Selma, Tenn.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Fr. Robert Schumacher, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church, officiating.

Burial will be in the Garden of Memories cemetery.

Services Held For McElmurry

CHARLESTON - Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Mercy Seat Baptist Church here for Hurbert McElmurry, 39, a former Charleston resident who was dead on arrival at St. Louis hospital after an automobile accident in St. Louis, where he moved two years ago.

The Rev. R. B. Gibson will officiate. Burial will be in Oak Grove Cemetery, with Sparks Funeral Home in charge.

McElmurry was born in Charleston. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth McElmurry of the St. Louis home, two sons, Ruben McElmurry, Charleston, and Anthony McElmurry; three daughters, Miss Johnnie M. McElmurry, Charleston, Miss Ava J. McElmurry and Miss Sandra McElmurry.

Also surviving are three brothers, Herman McElmurry, Charleston, M. C. McElmurry, St. Louis, and Marshall McElmurry, Dowagiac, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Freddie M. Townsend and Mrs. Louetta Haynes, Dowagiac.

Troubles Plague Saturn Flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) – The third stage of America's Saturn 5 super-rocket failed to restart in space today after two second stage engines quit earlier in a troubled flight that could delay the country's man-to-the-moon program.

Despite the premature shutdown of the second stage engines, other engines took up the slack and the world's most powerful rocket shoved into orbit the satellite weighing 132 tons. The satellite consists of an unmanned, 28-ton, Apollo 6 moon ship, a dummy lunar landing capsule and the third stage.

In all, the Saturn 5 has 11 engines: five first stage, five second stage and one third stage engine.

The rocket propelled the huge load into orbit but it was the wrong orbit– 110 miles too high.

If the Apollo 6 had carried men, a mission to the moon would have been aborted, said an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. After the malfunction of the second stage, too little fuel remained to propel the craft outward to the moon.

And he said the later failure of the third stage to restart would have prevented a moon shot in any event.

The restart was attempted more than three hours into the flight after the satellite had circled the globe twice.

"We did not get a re-ignition," the mission control center reported.

Controllers immediately ordered the Apollo 6 separated from the third stage. This was done successfully. Then the space craft engine– instead of the dead third stage engine– was called upon to propel the craft to a point 13,832 miles in space.

From this height, the space craft will make a flaming dive back to the atmosphere at lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour. If all goes well it will parachute to a landing in the Pacific Ocean about 390 miles northwest of Hawaii about 4:50 p.m.

The aircraft carrier Okinawa waited there to recover the craft.

After the premature shutdown of the second stage engines, the Apollo program manager, Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips said the flight proved that liquid rocket engines can fail, "but not catastrophically."

and a sixth of all China's territory, is mostly barren desert, locked by mountains. It has 1,500 miles of frontier with the U.S.S.R. It also has untold and largely unexploited natural riches: molybdenum, iron, coal, uranium -- the raw material for nuclear power -- and many other minerals.

Chinese rule there has been historically weak. The Chinese are a minority. The population is 75 per cent Uighur and Kazakh and the rest the ruling Chinese and other minorities.

As the feud between Peking and Moscow grew in scope, the Russians early in the 1960s began closing their consulates in Sinkiang and helping Kazakh and other non-Chinese refugees escape to the Soviet Union by the thousands. Soviet agitation, by Chinese account, led to riotous uprisings in an area whose history already had been dotted with Moslem revolts against Chinese authority. China sealed the borders in 1962 after thousands had fled, and there were reports of Chinese troops firing across the border.

In 1965, Peking came out with a book called "A Short Geography of China." It contended that Soviet - Chinese borders had not been definitely established and repeated the claim to 600,000 square miles. It carried a map showing undefined borders deep into Soviet territory.

Throughout 1966 and 1967 there were disturbances and even bloodshed along the borders and the flight of non-Chinese to the Soviet Union continued. There were reports of a guerrilla force organized on the Soviet side of Sinkiang, though this could not be confirmed.

The border quarrel was at its most acrimonious pitch last March, when Moscow's propaganda voice reported Moslems opposing Mao Tse - tung in bloody clashes. It spoke of "tragic incidents" in Sinkiang and "furious anger of all Moslems" in the northern areas.

"National minorities," said Radio Russia's Peace and Progress, "occupy 60 per cent of China's territory. This fact is worth considering. It indicates best of all that Chinese leaders at one time conquered alien lands that did not wish to become Chinese colonies. This was in gross conflict with the principle of self - determination."

Thereafter, the border issues tended to fade into the background for a while, while Peking was busy with the complex turmoil of the cultural revolution upheaval.

But Moscow's invocation of "the principle of self - determination" seemed significant. The cultural revolution had uncovered forces in the northernmost provinces who were strongly nationalist, even in the upper reaches of the Communist party.

The Russians for a long time have provided indications that they suspected and distrusted the directions China was taking under the domination of Mao Tse-tung's group of leaders. Should "self - determination" move forces in the border provinces to seek to break away, Moscow might not find a series of buffer states in the areas unwelcome.

The wind system of the world varies dramatically. A breeze may blow gently westward at ground level while the jet stream, 31,000 feet overhead, races eastward at 300 miles an hour.

Johnson to Go to Hawaii

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Johnson has agreed to direct contacts on peace between North Vietnamese and U.S. representatives and will fly to Hawaii late tonight to discuss peace and war prospects with top American officials from Saigon.

Washington is understood to have messaged Hanoi informing the government of President Ho Chi Minh of U.S. readiness to meet for initial contacts on peace talks.

Officials indicated the first Hanoi-Washington contact would probably be between top U.S. and North Vietnamese diplomats in Moscow, Vientiane, Laos, or some other capital where both countries have embassies.

New Madrid Sets in Motion Plant Plans

NEW MADRID -- Mayor Robert Riley was authorized by the board of aldermen, in a meeting Monday night, to contract with R. W. Beck and Associates, engineers, to plan the financing and development of an electrical generating station. The station will serve the power requirements of the Noranda Manufacturing Company aluminum reduction plant.

The consulting firm will be asked to look into future needs of power in the city.

Larry Rost, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, was advised that the city would provide funds for the erection of steel street markers, which the Chamber had agreed to purchase.

A building permit was approved for Pat Summers, for the construction of a tourist court on highway 61, south of the city limits intersection.

April 9 - 10, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., were set aside for annual vaccination of dogs. On payment of $2 license fee, the vaccination for rabies will be given free. All dogs are required to be licensed.

The board voted to send two representatives of the city to the annual Missouri Industrial Development Conference in Jefferson City, April 23-24, with expense to be paid by the city.

Named to the park and cemetery commission were Charles C. Hatley, five - year term; Sam Hunter Jr., four - year term; Edward LaValle, three year term; L. H. Recker, two-year term, and Jack Long, one-year term.

Methodists to Use Theater, Milling Company Building

The board of the First Methodist Church has decided to use the Rex Theater for Sunday services beginning April 21, the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor, said today.

The senior high school cafetorium will be used for services at 8:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday. The Rex Theater will be used thereafter, and the same schedule will be observed, Wagner said.

The first floor of the Scott County Milling Co. building on Center street across from the Rex Theater will be used for Sunday School classes for the Senior High department, the Men's Class, the Ladies Philathea Class beginning April 21. The Ladies Gleaners Class will meet at the Rex Theater beginning April 21.

The Sunday School classes which will begin using the Milling Co. and the Rex will meet Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday at the senior high school.

The education building will be used beginning this Sunday, Palm Sunday, by the pre-school classes, the elementary classes, the young adults, the fellowship class and the open door class.

DIFFERENT SEATS are being installed in the Rex Theater this week and remodeling of the interior is underway. The theater will be used for services of the First Methodist Church starting April 21. Policeman Johnnie V. Taylor directs traffic as workmen carry in the seats, which were purchased from a theater in Blytheville, Ark.

A LARGE CYPRESS TREE, measuring between 90 and 100 feet high, and said to be over 150 years old, tumbled down in the tornadic winds last night at 8:10 p.m. on the Lincoln Scherer farm on highway Y, half mile east of Hunters gin. The tree struck the edge of the home and blocked the garage. Farm hands spend this morning clearing the 50-foot portion that fell. The base of the tree measured more than 10 feet.

Troubles Plague Saturn Flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) – The third stage of America's Saturn 5 super-rocket failed to restart in space today after two second stage engines quit earlier in a troubled flight that could delay the country's man-to-the-moon program.

Despite the premature shutdown of the second stage engines, other engines took up the slack and the world's most powerful rocket shoved into orbit the satellite weighing 132 tons. The satellite consists of an unmanned, 28-ton, Apollo 6 moon ship, a dummy lunar landing capsule and the third stage.

In all, the Saturn 5 has 11 engines: five first stage, five second stage and one third stage engine.

The rocket propelled the huge load into orbit but it was the wrong orbit– 110 miles too high.

If the Apollo 6 had carried men, a mission to the moon would have been aborted, said an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. After the malfunction of the second stage, too little fuel remained to propel the craft outward to the moon.

And he said the later failure of the third stage to restart would have prevented a moon shot in any event.

The restart was attempted more than three hours into the flight after the satellite had circled the globe twice.

"We did not get a re-ignition," the mission control center reported.

Controllers immediately ordered the Apollo 6 separated from the third stage. This was done successfully. Then the space craft engine– instead of the dead third stage engine– was called upon to propel the craft to a point 13,832 miles in space.

From this height, the space craft will make a flaming dive back to the atmosphere at lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour. If all goes well it will parachute to a landing in the Pacific Ocean about 390 miles northwest of Hawaii about 4:50 p.m.

The aircraft carrier Okinawa waited there to recover the craft.

After the premature shutdown of the second stage engines, the Apollo program manager, Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips said the flight proved that liquid rocket engines can fail, "but not catastrophically."

and a sixth of all China's territory, is mostly barren desert, locked by mountains. It has 1,500 miles of frontier with the U.S.S.R. It also has untold and largely unexploited natural riches: molybdenum, iron, coal, uranium -- the raw material for nuclear power -- and many other minerals.

Chinese rule there has been historically weak. The Chinese are a minority. The population is 75 per cent Uighur and Kazakh and the rest the ruling Chinese and other minorities.

As the feud between Peking and Moscow grew in scope, the Russians early in the 1960s began closing their consulates in Sinkiang and helping Kazakh and other non-Chinese refugees escape to the Soviet Union by the thousands. Soviet agitation, by Chinese account, led to riotous uprisings in an area whose history already had been dotted with Moslem revolts against Chinese authority. China sealed the borders in 1962 after thousands had fled, and there were reports of Chinese troops firing across the border.

In 1965, Peking came out with a book called "A Short Geography of China." It contended that Soviet - Chinese borders had not been definitely established and repeated the claim to 600,000 square miles. It carried a map showing undefined borders deep into Soviet territory.

Throughout 1966 and 1967 there were disturbances and even bloodshed along the borders and the flight of non-Chinese to the Soviet Union continued. There were reports of a guerrilla force organized on the Soviet side of Sinkiang, though this could not be confirmed.

The border quarrel was at its most acrimonious pitch last March, when Moscow's propaganda voice reported Moslems opposing Mao Tse-tung in bloody clashes. It spoke of "tragic incidents" in Sinkiang and "furious anger of all Moslems" in the northern areas.

"National minorities," said Radio Russia's Peace and Progress, "occupy 60 per cent of China's territory. This fact is worth considering. It indicates best of all that Chinese leaders at one time conquered alien lands that did not wish to become Chinese colonies. This was in gross conflict with the principle of self - determination."

Thereafter, the border issues tended to fade into the background for a while, while Peking was busy with the complex turmoil of the cultural revolution upheaval.

But Moscow's invocation of "the principle of self - determination" seemed significant. The cultural revolution had uncovered forces in the northernmost provinces who were strongly nationalist, even in the upper reaches of the Communist party.

The Russians for a long time have provided indications that they suspected and distrusted the directions China was taking under the domination of Mao Tse-tung's group of leaders. Should "self - determination" move forces in the border provinces to seek to break away, Moscow might not find a series of buffer states in the areas unwelcome.

Johnson to Go to Hawaii

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Johnson has agreed to direct contacts on peace between North Vietnamese and U.S. representatives and will fly to Hawaii late tonight to discuss peace and war prospects with top American officials from Saigon.

Washington is understood to have messaged Hanoi informing the government of President Ho Chi Minh of U.S. readiness to meet for initial contacts on peace talks.

Officials indicated the first Hanoi-Washington contact would probably be between top U.S. and North Vietnamese diplomats in Moscow, Vientiane, Laos, or some other capital where both countries have embassies.

New Madrid Sets in Motion Plant Plans

NEW MADRID -- Mayor Robert Riley was authorized by the board of aldermen, in a meeting Monday night, to contract with R. W. Beck and Associates, engineers, to plan the financing and development of an electrical generating station. The station will serve the power requirements of the Noranda Manufacturing Company aluminum reduction plant.

The consulting firm will be asked to look into future needs of power in the city.

Larry Rost, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, was advised that the city would provide funds for the erection of steel street markers, which the Chamber had agreed to purchase.

A building permit was approved for Pat Summers, for the construction of a tourist court on highway 61, south of the city limits intersection.

April 9 - 10, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., were set aside for annual vaccination of dogs. On payment of $2 license fee, the vaccination for rabies will be given free. All dogs are required to be licensed.

The board voted to send two representatives of the city to the annual Missouri Industrial Development Conference in Jefferson City, April 23-24, with expense to be paid by the city.

Named to the park and cemetery commission were Charles C. Hatley, five - year term; Sam Hunter Jr., four - year term; Edward LaValle, three year term; L. H. Recker, two-year term, and Jack Long, one-year term.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

MISSOURIAN DUCKS ETHICS CODE VOTE

WASHINGTON -- It is understandable that Missouri's Senator Edward Long, friend of the people and enemy of the wiretapping bug, should bridle with sensitivity at the mention of campaign contributions this high political season.

Among the funds which have contributed money to the senator's campaigns is the Voluntary Political Educational, Legislative, Charitable and Defense Fund of the St. Louis Pipefitters Local 562.

The fund is, in effect, controlled by another defender of the faith, the union's iron-handed business manager, Lawrence Callanan. He has tangled, and sometimes lost, with the FBI, the Department of Justice, the International Revenue Service, the United States marshals, the St. Louis police, the Missouri state police and even the sheriff of Clayton, Mo. He is a brutal ex-convict, fought by the decent citizens of St. Louis, who, when sentenced to 12 years for labor racketeering in 1954 heard the judge say:

"Callanan took from the funds of the union, of which he is an officer, funds to pay for his defense. Callanan was the brains of the racketeering conspiracy." The judge added that this case is a "more grievous and aggravated violation of the law" than any other racketeering case tried before him.

That was long ago but Callanan was paroled in 1960 and pardoned in April 1964. So today he is the boss and officially the business agent of the labor - controlling Plumbers' Local 562 at an acknowledged annual income of about $29,000.

All this came to mind the other day when the Senate voted on the new code of ethics. Senator Long did not show up. He did not pair his vote. He passed it right by -- though he is a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, the Judiciary Committee and the Special Committee on Aging.

For years now, the senator has been roaming the land speaking at Teamsters rallies, denouncing wiretapping, shouting for civil liberties, clutching the people to his breast, blasting the IRS, the Justice Department and other law enforcement agencies. They have been mute. The unwritten law is that you don't argue with a senator.

What compounded the senator's senstitivity over action on a code of ethics and the fiduciary responsibilities of members of the Congress is a special bill introduced by Mr. Long on March 8. He called for the creation of a federal - type "ombudsman."

An ombudsman is an awesomely honest chap. His morality and conduct and devotion to the little peole are universally accepted. He is the man to slash red tape. He is the man to rally to the loneliest citizen beset by the mightiest bureaucracy. This, then, is the type of public guardian Senator Long says he yearns to establish in these United States.

Yet Senator Long did not vote for a diluted code of ethics. And neither does the Senate Ethics Committee appear interested in the senator's own code. Presumably the ethics committee is investigating charges that Senator Long delivered all those speeches to help a friend - Jim Hoffa.

The committee retained the old Senate rackets committee's crack investigating auditor, Carmine Bellino. He came. He looked. He conferred. He mapped the study. He quit before he started.

And when I telephoned him, he thought it best not to talk. Why? What restrictions were placed on this man who could have saved Diogenes a lot of travel.

Soviet Sources Say Hanoi Willing to Halt Attacks

LONDON (AP) — Soviet informants said today they expect preliminary Vietnam peace talks to begin in Moscow next week. They said the North Vietnamese have already assured the United States privately they will launch no major offensive if all American bombing attacks are halted.

The sources, who cannot be identified by name, said Hanoi already has begun lifting the siege of Khe Sanh as a sign of its intentions.

None of these statements could be confirmed in official Western circles.

The officials cautioned, however, against expecting an early end to the peace negotiations. They said they expected them to go for months.

Other sources recalled that 12,000 Americans were killed in Korea while truce talks were going on.

The Russian informants said Moscow was not consulted by Hanoi before Wednesday's conditional acceptance of President Johnson's call for peace talks.

They said that in view of Peking's present relatively low influence in the North Vietnamese capital, they did not believe the Red Chinese were consulted either.

"What you Americans seem to find hard to realize is that North Vietnam is a sovereign nation," one Russian said.

They said they expected the preliminary talks to get under way "very quickly— probably next week."

They added that they believed the only possible sites for such talks were Moscow or Paris and that the Soviet capital has a 60-40 chance of being chosen.

Moscow is the only capital in the world with American, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomatic representatives. Paris has a diplomatic mission from Hanoi but no official representative of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

The Soviet informants said they believed a major stumbling block, once real peace negotiations get under way, will be an American commitment to withdraw from South Vietnam.

They said this is a prime issue in Hanoi's eyes and the North Vietnamese want a definite agreement that U.S. withdrawal will start the moment a peace pact is signed and be completed within a fixed time.

The Russians did not believe Washington would easily agree to this in view of the Manila agreement between the United States and its Vietnam allies that withdrawal would not begin until six months after the end of Viet Cong resistance.

The sources said they expected the preliminary talks to be fairly short.

They said Moscow "has certain knowledge" that Hanoi has privately assured Washington that after a complete halt in bombing and other attacks on North Vietnam, the Communist forces, both Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, will refrain from launching any major offensive until conclusion or breakdown of peace negotiations.

They said a partial evacuation of forces besieging the U.S. Marines at Khe Sanh has already begun and that Communist forces were putting up little more than token resistance to a U.S.-South Vietnamese rescue drive up Highway 9 toward the base.

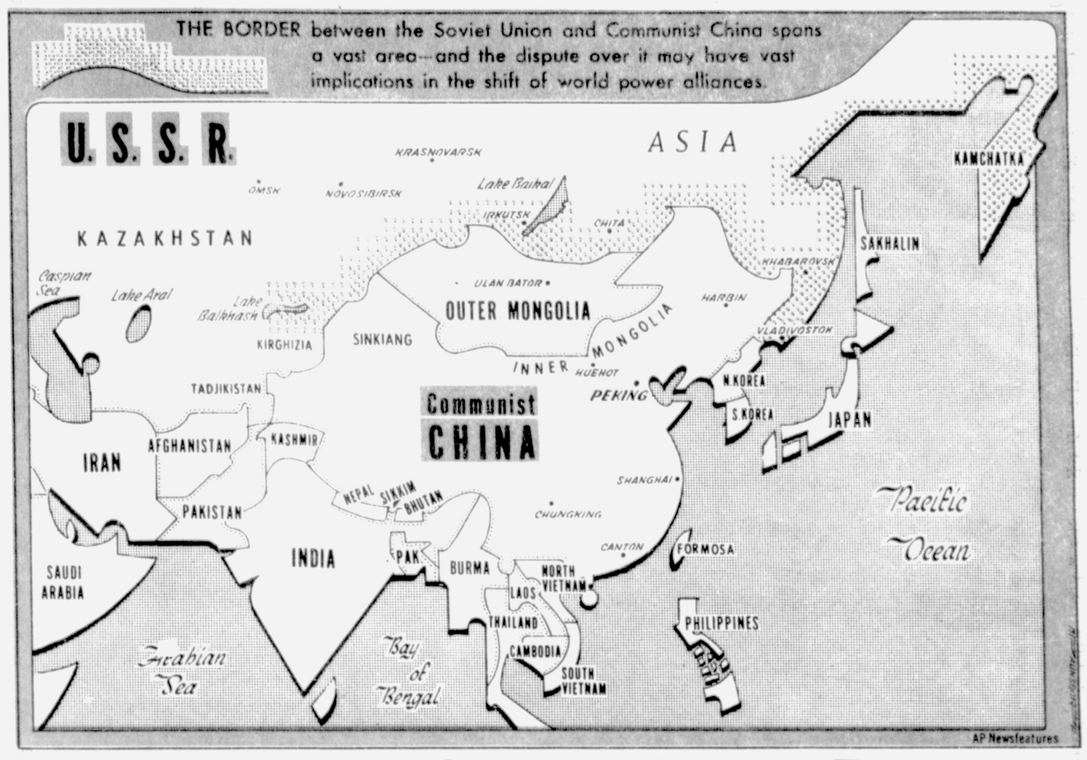
The informants said Hanoi was ready for private or public talks, in accord with Washington's views, both in the preliminary and the peace conference stages.

The Soviet Union has not yet followed up a British bid for joint action to set Vietnam peacekeeping machinery in motion, qualified sources reported.

The two countries, as cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina, were urged by President Johnson Sunday night to reconvene the conference.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart called in Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky Monday and Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent a direct message to Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Informed sources said there had been no Soviet response.



Uneasy Truce Soviet-China Borders

By The Associated Press

Another undeclared propaganda truce, probably as temporary as those which preceded it, appeared to be in effect this spring along the uneasy borders of the Soviet Union and Red China.

The lull does not mean Peking has shelved its territorial complaints against the Russians. This conflict is likely to become more intense as time goes by and eventually will play an important role in shifts of world power alliances.

The last undeclared truce came just a year ago, when both Moscow and Peking muted the border quarrels. Then, early this year, the Chinese opened the door to a new round of tension. Propaganda from Peking suggested the Russians had a hand in a secessionist movement in Inner Mongolia.

In the past, the Chinese had attributed similar intentions to the Russians with regard to the Sinkiang - Uighur antonomous region, site of China's nuclear tests.

The latest accusations came as Moscow was preparing for the Budapest conference of Communist leaders which in turn, the Russians hoped, would prepare the way for a world conference of Communist leaders. Such a conference probably would be asked to condemn the Chinese leadership for its divisive activities in the world movement.

The Budapest meeting has come and gone, and the propaganda about Soviet Chinese borders has faded again into the background. If a world Communist conerence is held, as advertised, next fall, it is likely to be preceded by yet another round of Soviet - Chinese border tension in the past.

The Russians for many years had a keen interest in areas across the border rich in raw materials. China's current turbulence and its leaders' angry feud with the "Soviet revisionist clique" could provide Moscow with an excuse for eyeing the northern provinces in the context of Soviet security. The dispute over territory of Soviet territory.

There was particular tension in the Sinkiang area. Sinkiang, 2½ times the size of Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Savage thunderstorms and a string of killer tornadoes left 13 persons dead in the Mississippi Valley today as the center of a spring storm which ripped through the Great Plains Wednesday pushed east.

Twelve of the dead were victims of tornadoes in Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky. A Cisne, Ill., man was drowned in a swollen creek near his home.

Temperatures fell rapidly in the wake of the storms and cold-wave warnings were issued for the central plains.

Parts of Wyoming, Nebraska and Colorado remained isolated in the wake of a storm which piled up 6-foot drifts. Helicopters and plows began early today to search for stranded motorists and marooned ranchers.

Arkansas counted six twisters in a two-hour period and reported six persons dead. Search parties hunted rural areas devastated by the funnel clouds for other possible victims.

Four persons died at Atoka, Tenn., 30 miles north of Memphis. Ambulances transferred 30 to 40 victims to the Memphis Naval Air Station Hospital. They were victims of a twister which smashed into a trailer park at Millington, north of Memphis.

Another twister bounced across Calloway County in western Kentucky and killed a young couple whose bodies were tossed 100 yards from their demolished home.

The heavy rains caused flash flooding of creeks and left 7,500 residents of Russellville, Ky., isolated. Many were evacuated by boat. Other homes in the area were splintered by the winds which littered highways with debris and toppled trees.

Two blocks of homes and a church were leveled and five persons were injured in a tornado that hit the Vincent community west of West Memphis, Ark. Nine homes were demolished and six persons were injured at Crawfordsville, Ark., a few miles farther west.

Arkansas Power and Light Co. reported at least six towns without electrical power after the storms ripped down portions of a 500,000-volt line between Little Rock and Memphis. Seven other cities had only partial electrical service, the company said.

Search operations frequently were hampered by debris and tangled power lines and authorities said it would take some time to make any estimate of damage.

Damage to the trailer park alone in Tennessee was estimated at more than $500,000 by Millington Mayor Tom Hall. He said 30 trailers were destroyed and 70 others damaged. The park is occupied mostly by service personnel from Memphis Naval Air Station.

Levy Fails, Charleston Will Try Again

CHARLESTON -- The proposed 25-cent levy increase for the R-1 school district failed to pass in Tuesday's election, 716--755.

The 195 absentee ballots were counted Wednesday.

The board of education was called a special election April 23 when the proposed increase will be voted on again.

The levy would increase the total to $3.75 for $100 assessed valuation.

At the school board meeting James Martin was re-elected president. Other officers elected were Dennis Quertermous, vice president; Eleanor Hequembourg, secretary, and Robert Hearnes, treasurer.

Five Injured in Road Mishaps

Four Charleston residents were injured seriously following a fishing trip as they were returning home at 6:16 p.m. Wednesday on route K, five miles northeast of Charleston.

A 1967 Dodge pickup truck, driven by Cletus Counts, 24, ran off the road in a rain, went down an enbankment and struck a tree.

The four were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital. Three are listed in serious condition and as critical.

In a farm implement-car accident, Wednesday at 11:30 p.m. on highway 62, one mile east of Miner, Robert Lee Combs, 27, route three, Sikeston, is in serious condition in the Missouri Delta Community hospital. His 1956 Plymouth ran into an farm tractor, that fell off of an International tractor-trailer, driven by Alvin Clifton Hellend, 41, Senaca, Ill., into the car's path.

$1,150 Received in Easter Seal Drive

The Easter Seal campaign has received $1,150 in contributions, reported Mrs. Buford Baber, campaign chairman for the Scott county Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Mrs. Baber said more funds were needed to continue rehabilitation and treatment services for physically handicapped children and adults.

She estimated that 21 million Americans suffer from crippling conditions, such as arthritis, hearing and speech impairments, orthopedic and strokes.

Another 370,000 are disabled by accidents at home, at work and on the highway. Some 5,300,000 with disabilities are unable to work or carry on other activities on a regular basis.

"The Scott County Easter Seal Society," Mrs. Baber said, "with the help of concerned countians can give many of our own disabled neighbors the opportunity to reach maximum independence whereby they can become self - supporting."

Donations may be sent to the Scott County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, in care of Mrs. Jack Limbaugh 119 West Davidson, Chaffee, Mo. 63740.

Sikeston Student Wins Science Fair First Prize

Thomas Hedrick's project, Computer Input Enabling Programming by Written Material, won first place in the physics division.

Other area winners in the senior division were Rick Blankenship, Dexter high school, who won second place in botany with Photosynthesis vs. Herbicide Concentration; Karen Wilson, Dexter high school, first place, medicine and health, The Dependency of Muscle Contractions on ATP; Dixie Jennings, Dexter high school, second place, zoology, Oxidative Phosphorylation and Mary Grant, Dexter high school, third place, zoology, Metabolic Transformations of Acetate.

Area winners in the junior division were Glyn Jarrell, Dexter high school, second place, medicine and health, Heart Rate vs. Adrenalin Concentration; Laura Doggett, Sikeston junior high school, second place, chemistry and biochemistry, Ozone's Effect on Plants; Ned Tanner, Sikeston junior high school, tied for second place, earth and space, Effects of Radiation on Soils in Southeast Missouri;

Randy Abernathy, Advance R-4, first place, physics, How Heat and Cold Affect Bouncing.

Youth Passing Loading School Bus Charged

A Sikeston youth was charged by police at 8 a.m. today with careless and imprudent driving for passing a school bus that had stopped for loading on Smith street.

Johnny Wayne Petty, 17, 847 East Gladys St., was charged with careless and imprudent driving and operating a motor vehicle without a city auto license.

Richard Hobbs, 205 Dixie St., was charged at 7:13 a.m. today with careless and imprudent driving for failure to yield the right of way, police reported.

Hobbs drove from Helen street into the path of a southbound automobile on North Main causing a collision. Cleo Gilmer, New Madrid, the driver of the southbound car, suffered bruises to her right leg and broken teeth. She was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital, police reported.

The Sikeston Housing Authority received official approval Tuesday of a program calling for the leasing of 100 low rent houses to be built in Sikeston.

The approval came in a telegram from Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long and Rep. Paul C. Jones.

The Sikeston Housing Authority will begin accepting plans and proposals from investor builders immediately.

The approval means the department of housing and urban development will provide financial assistance to cover part of the rent with the remainder paid by tenants.

The attractive feature of the lease program to building contractors is that the Housing Authority will guarantee the house will be rented for 10 years.

Billy Hanna, director of the Sikeston Housing Authority, called the regional HUD office in Ft. Worth today and learned the telegram constituted official approval of the program.

The procedure to follow now is for builders to submit plans and proposals including elevation, location, floor plans and approximate cost of units. The plans are to be submitted to the Housing Authority board.

Upon acceptance, the board will issue a letter of intent, which is binding, stating that the Housing Authority will lease the units from the contractor at a stated amount per month.

The lease will be for five years with a five-year extension option, Hanna said.

"I am almost certain there will be a clause in the lease, whereby the occupant has the option to buy the single-family dwellings," Hanna said.

The units that may be built include: 20 one-bedroom units, 65 two-bedroom units, 10 three-bedroom units and 5 four-bedroom units.

The lease program guarantees the Sikeston Housing Authority an annual contributions contract which underwrites the rent payments to the persons who finance the building of units.

The rent payments will be $72 per month for one-bedroom units, $90 per month for two-bedroom units, $110 per month for three-bedroom units and $135 per month for four-bedroom units.

Tenants will pay a part of the monthly rent payment based on their income. The Sikeston Housing Authority will pay the remainder with funds received through the lease program.

Cost of the units to be constructed will depend on the individual private contractors. The rent payments are based on a two-bedroom house estimated to cost $11,000, with a 20 per cent difference per bedroom.

The cost of the two bedroom house is based on public housing and the estimate is made by the regional HUD office in Ft. Worth, Tex., Hanna said. Private contractors should be able to build the units for less, Hanna said.

Bill Burch New President Of Jaycees

The new officers will be installed at a banquet beginning at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the Country Club. A dance will follow.

School Board Reelects Martin

Dr. A. D. Martin was reelected president of the public school board Wednesday following the annual school election.

All other officers of the board were reelected. They are Bob Mitchell, first vice president; Bruce Lewis, second vice president; Charles Matthews, secretary, and Charles Simpson, treasurer.

Bob McCord, elected in Tuesday's election, was sworn in as the only new member of the board. He replaces O. C. Lewis, who did not seek reelection. Clem Beal was reelected.

In other Board action, the allocation of fund levies for the 1968-69 school year was approved: teacher fund, $1.20; incidental fund, $1.10; building fund, $1.25 and debt service, 60 cents.

The board was informed by Supt. Lynn Twitty, that in accordance with previous board approval, negotiation are underway with city officials, concerning an exchange of the old post office building to the city. The exchange would be for an equal amount of space, which the schools need for storage purposes.

The superintendent said that a storage building of an inexpensive type, which would meet school needs, might be constructed by the city.

The city would get the better constructed, more substantial post office building for city governmental purposes if the exchange can be affected.

The annual Easter break will begin at the end of the school day Wednesday. Classes will resume April 16.

A faculty in-service workshop will be held May 3. Students will be dismissed for the day.

The board will invite social studies classes to attend its next meeting in May.

The board probably will meet at the high school because of limited space at the regular board meeting room.

The board was informed that a revision of the financial budget is being made because of the changes effected by the Morehouse annexation and voters' approval of the kindergarten program.

Incidental fund bills amounting to $18,050.91 were ordered paid as were accounts totaling $8,322.30 from the building fund.

Sikes and Noles Sworn in Posts

Mayor Kendall Sikes and vice mayor Taylor Noles were sworn in for three-year council posts in a meeting of the city council at 5 p.m. Wednesday at the city administration building.

Votes cast in the city election Tuesday were canvassed and the results were accepted. Sikes and Noles were reelected to three-year posts. Paul Jobe was elected to the one year remaining of the unexpired council post of the late Harry E. Dudley.

An ordinance was adopted accepting the annexation of the 270 acres to the southeast of the old city limits. The annexation passed by an 8 to 1 majority in the Tuesday election.

Jobe and Lee Shell did not attend the meeting.

The council will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday at the city administration building for election of mayor.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We don't blame him.

After starting the ruckus it was time to get away before the club swinging started.

The doctor does not intend to take any punishment for his misdeeds if running away will keep it from happening.

Like the union leaders, he disclaims anything to do with the trouble.

WHY, IN THE NAME OF GOD?

For 21 years we have sent our young men overseas to Europe by the thousands -- so many there's scarcely a home in the land which hasn't had a member there in the army of occupation for one reason -- to keep communism from taking over the free world.

For 21 years we've sent our fine young men to Africa, the Near East, the Far East, the islands of the Pacific, up into the arctic cold and down into tropical heat, kept them there month after weary month, year after weary year, for just one reason -- to keep communism from taking over the free world.

For 21 long years this nation has spent billion upon billions to finance the Marshall Plan, subsidize the UN and NATO, help the neutrals, help even Communist countries and those who twist our tail and spit in our face every chance they get until we have so squandered our reserves that should all the countries to whom we now owe gold call for repayment at once we could give them every ounce and still not be square with the world, for just one reason -- to prevent the spread of communism and the enslavement of free men.

For 21 long years this nation, after winning a great war, has strained its economic resources, marshalled its engineers and scientists, used up raw materials and manpower much better used for other purposes to create, maintain and enlarge an arsenal not only for our own armed forces but for a long list of other nations for one reason, and one reason only, to deter Communist aggression and world domination.

Twice in the past two decades, we have drafted our young men and reservists to fight and die -- and thousands upon thousands have given their lives in Korea and Vietnam -- for just one reason -- to resist Communist aggression.

This has been our national purpose for 21 years. This had been our contribution to the life and death struggle to preserve human freedom and prevent the enslavement of that portion of the world population which has not already been enslaved.

No nation has ever been so generous, so unselfish, so dedicated, so self-sacrificing for so long in all the history of mankind. Ours has been a noble purpose, one for which our young men have been willing to give their time, and their lives, and for which Americans have been willing to spend their treasure.

Then why, in the name of God, do we permit the enemy we resist without the borders of this country to work within it unrestrained -- protected by every legal and gnat so-called liberal interpreters of the law can gag on?

We have seen/Aug.16/ a federal judge, fortunately overruled almost without a hearing by a higher court, dare to enjoin a congressional committee seeking to investigate treason in this country -- trying to determine what aid and comfort, material and spiritual, Americans are giving our enemies.

We have heard Americans take the stand, admit they are Communists, boast how much they have aided, are aiding, and will aid the very Communist soldiers who are killing men wearing the uniform of this country and sent into battle by our own government. We have listened to them defy their country and the congress, disrupt a congressional hearing, call the president of this country a murderer -- and let a few off with nothing more than a $10 fine, while others weren't punished at all!

We have seen treasonable Americans seek by force to prevent the loading of supplies being shipped to soldiers fighting for this country half a globe away and not even be arrested! In fact, simple-minded commentators and reporters have dared to criticize an American marine who pushed a crazed young female traitor out of the way of such a shipment because she stumbled and fell into a ditch full of water, which they intimated was an act of brutality.

We have seen others try to break up college draft examinations, interfere with the work of draft boards, disturb the wedding of our president's daughter, demean and call men moving toward Vietnam murderers of women and children.

And, if we've done anything, it has been nothing more than to slap them on the wrist and let them know we think they are naughty children!

Why, in the name that is right, do we suffer this? Why do we let people too young to vote or be elected to congress influence our foreign policy? Why do we listen to people so wet behind the ears they'd never be hired for a position of any importance by a private business firm? Why do we spend so much time, blood, treasure and effort opposing communism abroad and let young punks and perverts, who boast they are Communists, fight our government here at home?

Why do we protect with all the force of the law the right of admitted Communists to teach in publicly-supported colleges and universities?

Why do we listen to prattle about the right of dissent by hopheads from hashish or LSD parties on our campuses, when other young men have been drafted to give up jobs, leave their families, and die in foreign jungles all in the name of resistance to communism?

Why can't a nation which only 25 years ago could move whole populations of Japanese, whose only crime was being the same blood as that of one of our enemies, crack down upon these traitors in or midst today?

Why can't we shut these people up for as long as our men are dying for us? If communism be wrong, and if its spread should be prevented, why must we give these agitators freedom to spread it here in America -- nay, even protect them as they spread it?

Why, when there is open treason in our streets, on our campuses, even in our congressional hearings, can anyone think that to let it continue unpunished is not to break faith with our men fighting overseas?

If communism must be resisted at all costs in Berlin and Saigon, why shouldn't we resist it with all our might and main in Washington, and Berkeley, and Chicago?

Mr. Maurice Stans, former Director of the Bureau of the Budget, speaking at the Congress of American Industry, expressed his concern over the rapidly accelerating inflation in the American economy. According to the National Association of Manufacturers, he stated with the large government deficits, a long unfavorable balance of payments, a new crisis in international finances, and general uncertainty for business and the domestic economy, it is a good time to prove for a better way of doing things. He suggests that one way is to slow down federal spending and apply common sense in setting of budget priorities.

Representative John T. Moreover, the ever-increasing number of complaints, misdeliveries, nondeliveries, delays and backups are a clear warning that even more serious trouble lies ahead unless corrective steps are taken. As long as the department remains a politically dominated agency where appointments and all promotions, from postmaster to carrier, are based on political favoritism rather than merit, postal experience and good management procedures, a first-class postal system cannot be developed and maintained."

NORTH KOREA PLAYS DANGEROUS GAME

Lacking not only the answers to some essential questions concerning the seizure of the USS Pueblo but, more importantly, lacking insight into the minds of the leaders of North Korea, it is impossible to estimate the full seriousness of this "incident."

Serious enough it is, to be sure. The capture of another nation's ship on the high seas is and always has been, according to what little law exists, between sovereign states, an act of war. It fully warrants the limited military preparations this nation has made, in conjunction with its diplomatic protestations.

Coming hard upon the exposure of a plot by North Korean infiltrators to assassinate the president of South Korea and other government officials, it suggests we are dealing with a bunch of fanatics who are itching for a replay of the Korean War.

It hardly seems possible, however, that North Korea actually desires to force issues to the point of war, that it is so out of touch with reality that it believes the United States is too overextended in South Vietnam to undertake another military effort in Korea.

Even did the North Koreans believe that, they must be aware that South Korea, which would inevitably be drawn into any conflict, is not South Vietnam. It is a strong, unified, well-armed country immeasurably better able to defend itself than it was in 1950.

More likely is it that North Korea is confident that the United States will endure almost any provocation short of full-scale attack on South Korea rather than embark on another war, and that pulling Uncle Sam's beard is a good way to impress friends and influence other Asians.

If so, it is a dangerous game to play. Small provocations have a way of setting off bigger provocations unless the whole process is immediately damped by diplomacy.

North Korea's release of an obviously phony confession by the skipper of the Pueblo, its denunciatory reply to our initial approaches and Russia's unwillingness or inability to use its good offices have done nothing to ease tensions.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has advised the North Koreans to "cool it." But the danger at the moment stems from the fact that, thinking they have achieved some sort of propaganda victory, they may be playing it too cool.

THE PARLIAMENT OF MAN

U Thant, Secretary-General of the United Nations, said in a speech at Uppsala, Sweden, in May, 1962: "The concept of taxing the rich according to their needs, is now well established as a simple canon of social justice in all democratic countries. It requires only little imagination to lift this concept to a higher plane, and to extend its scope from the country to the universe."

Karl Marx phrased it a little differently: he said, "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." And he left out the universe.

Maybe what U Thant had in mind was the assessment of UN member nations. Sixty-one nations, one-half of the 122 member nations of the UN, were assessed less than 3 per cent of the UN budget for the year 1967. The precise amount is 2.56 per cent.

If we add 21 nations, bringing the total to 82, or two-thirds of the UN membership, the assessment was 5.52 per cent, according to the Yearbook of the United Nations.

Each of these 82 nations has one vote in the General Assembly. The United States has one vote.

The 1967 assessment upon the United States was 31.91 per cent. The assessment upon the 12 nations with Communist governments totalled 21.69 per cent.

When it comes to the specialized programs and agencies, and the so-called voluntary programs, the gap is even wider. UN contributions amount to about 45 per cent of the overall total. Here the Communist nations lag even farther behind. Among other failures, they refused to contribute to the "peacekeeping operations" in Palestine or the Congo, in spite of World Court rulings that the assessments were legal.

"The expenses of the Organization," says the UN Charter, "shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly."

The contribution of the United States to the regular budget has been limited by Congress to not more than one-third of the total for any year. But year after year, Washington borrows money to pay the assessments and contributions, leaving a colossal debt that our children and their children will have to pay.

Zeek sez he don't think it's no more crime to rob a bank usin a gun as persuader than it is to fail to use a law to curb monopolies robbin the people in broad daylight or to make laws that robs honest hard-working people by taxation which is much more persuasive than lookin down the barrel of a hat. And besides a body ain't shore that holdup man won't chicken and a body knows from bitter experiences them tax boys ain't gonna chicken.

H.L. Hunt Says

ANTI-AMERICANISM IN OUR INSTITUTIONS

Recently Senator James Eastland introduced a bill to strengthen the Internal Security act of 1950. One provision in the bill would make it a crime to give "aid or comfort" to any foreign nation or armed group engaged in "open hostilities against the United States."

We could expect the Farleft to oppose this bill; naturally they condemn resistance to communist aggression in South Vietnam. The really disturbing element is that some institutions of high learning are actually encouraging young people to give aid and comfort to the enemy and to oppose efforts to strengthen the security of the United States.

In one college, stacks of mineographed material relating to Senator Eastland's bill were distributed in the administration building. It urged students to send letter demanding that the bill be defeated, and included a form letter to be signed by the student and mailed. The student was not urged to think through the issue himself and form an opinion based on facts. He was asked to accept the material and mail a form letter as if he had no mind of his own. The material was unsigned, so that students could not question those who had distributed it.

Distributed in the same building was a list of lectures comprising "a new course on the war in Vietnam." The titles of the lectures clearly indicated the students would not be instructed in patriotism or the necessity of defending against aggression, and this institution is clearly endangering the future of our young people and of freedom by disseminating such propaganda. Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Three key senators last week formed a backstage, high-powered log-rolling team to fix import quotas on textiles, steel and oil before the American public woke up to what was happening.

The three senators were: Ernest Hollings, freshman Democrat from South Carolina; Vance Hartke, the dovish Democrat from Indiana; and Russell Long, the ebullient Democrat from Louisiana, whose family owns several million dollars' worth of offshore oil leases in the Gulf of Mexico.

Together they formed a cabal which threatens to repeat the old log-rolling fiasco of the Hoover administration when the Smoot-Hawley Tariff act was put across on an unsuspecting public. This ended in demolishing American trade. It was one important factor which brought on the great depression.

The handsome Hollings, representing Southern Textile Manufacturers, suddenly tacked the textile import quota provision on the fiscal bill continuing telephone and automobile excise taxes. Hollings had done a lot of advance spadework. The bill shot through the senate 55 to 31.

Administration senators were taken completely by surprise.

The textile industry has suffered no pain in recent years. Between 1961 and 1966, its sales jumped from $13.4 billion to $19.5 billion. Its profits zoomed from $280 million to $700 million in the same period.

During the two-year period from 1965 to 1967 there was an increase in textiles employment despite greatly increased automation.

OTHER LOG-ROLLERS

Sitting in the senate wings was Adroit, Able Eddie McCormack, Nephew of speaker John McCormack, and former attorney general of Massachusetts. He is the mastermind of the steel lobby. Working with him was Senator Hartke, who has contributed constructive ideas toward peace and usually has been a champion of the consumers.

However, big steel -- Bethlehem, Inland, U.S. steel -- has plants and loading facilities on the Lake Michigan shore of Indiana. Hartke has become the spearhead of the lobby to put quotas on steel imports.

Simultaneously, Sen. Russell Long spearheads the lobby for oil. Russell's family is the chief stockholder in the win-or-lose oil company with millions invested in Louisiana oil.

These three senators have corralled enough votes among oil, steel and textile senators to override the fact that today the United States exports $4 billion more than it imports, and the warning that American farmers would be seriously hurt first if import quotas are placed on textiles, steel and oil. Foreign countries would retaliate immediately.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler has also warned that the import quotas would jeopardize our balance of trade and further hurt the dollar.

The National Retail Merchants Association has warned that the quotas would lead to substantial price increases for the American public.

QUIET CANADIAN DEMOCRACY

In contrast to the barnstorming and ballyhoo over choosing the next U.S. President, Canada will select a new prime minister next weekend in comparative quiet.

Technically, the liberal party will simply replace its retiring leader, Prime Minister Lester Pearson, with a new party chieftain. Because the liberal party is in power, the successor will automatically take over as Prime Minister without the fuss of a national election.

The voters, however, aren't being ignored. The party will choose a leader who seems most likely to win the next official election, which probably will be called sometime in the summer.

Thus the Canadian candidates, like their American counterparts, are out beating the bushes to demonstrate their voter appeal. The liberals even have their Bobby Kennedy -- Pierre Elliot Trudeau, a flamboyant, 44-year-old newcomer to politics --who has shaken up the party hierarchy.

Just as Bobby broke into the government as attorney general, Trudeau is minister of justice. Like Bobby, Trudeau is too impatient to wait for an orderly advance up the political ladder. His greatest appeal, like Bobby's, is with youth. But like Bobby, he may need more seasoning before he is qualified to take over the government.

Therefore, the liberals are more likely to turn to the veteran, scholarly minister of external affairs, Paul Martin, who has a greater claim on the party. Trudeau's headline appeal and Martin's solid party base make them the front runners.

By tradition, it is also a French-Canadian's turn at leadership. Both Trudeau and Martin are Bilingual and come from French - Canadian stock.

Two Anglo - Saxons, minister of Transport Paup Hellyer and minister of trade Robert Winters, also have large followings. Winters, a former businessman, preaches "fiscal integrity," which appeals to the conservatives in his party. There are seven other candidates, all well qualified.

Best guess is that the quietly Able Martin will come out of the Ottawa convention this weekend as Canada's new leader. His selection would be reassuring to Washington, for Martin has lived most of his life in Windsor, opposite Detroit, and has had many conferences with the state department. The White House will be watching the Canadian choice closely.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WORRIED BY NIXON:

Nation's Labor Chiefs Await LBJ's Signal On Push For '68 Presidential Candidate

Washington, D. C.: -- It's a long time from April to September, but the elders of labor will be playing a waiting game.

They'll mix prayers with pragmatism while awaiting a presidential candidate to whom to pledge themselves. They'll pray that Lyndon Johnson and Nelson Rockefeller didn't mean it.

But make no mistake about any of this. These labor men know the implications of power as intimately as Dali knows Dadism. They know their own strength. And they know the strength of an American president.

And they know that starting next Jan. 20, the next president of the U. S. for the next eight years may well be Richard Nixon (who they believe could only be beaten by Lyndon Johnson).

So the labor leaders, active in some 1500 cities, are grabbing up all the options they can. They know the significance of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) with its caravans and cash flow -- which, when totaled for all labor, could come to $50 million.

The labor leaders are placing themselves in a bargaining posture -- as usual. Certainly they reacted to the President's funereal valedictory. For the labor chiefs, it reeked of the end of their years of victory. They sat and told each other gloomily that the tornado-tongued Hubert Humphrey could not even carry Minnesota.

He would plunge in with all of Mr. Johnson's liabilities and none of his machinery -- though, only 10 minutes after the camera's red eye blinked black, a White House aide telephoned New York State's Johnsonian leaders to keep the headquarters going.

As for Gene McCarthy, none of the Senator's close aides had even the home phone numbers of high AFL-CIO leaders, for swift calls Sunday night.

As for Bob Kennedy, one of the very top labor men said, "If the fight is between Bobby Kennedy and Dick Nixon, I'm moving to Canada and renouncing my U. S. citizenship."

This should be modified by the fact that those close to George Meany tell that labor's power in the White House will slip from the AFL-CIO president to Walter Reuther, United Auto Workers president, should Kennedy be elected.

While the labor leaders, who had been running a series of regional political action sessions on how to reelect Lyndon Johnson, play the waiting game, they'll wait for some supersonic signal from the President. What does he want?

He opted out on a high moral, political and patriotic tone. So he can't bikini himself and dash back into the partisan political surf. Or, he might back a loser. If so, his refurbished national esteem would disappear.

So the signal will have to be inaudible to anybody but George Meany. But what if the signal never comes -- though in private, the President loathes Bob Kennedy more than any of us have ever indicated in print.

The labor leaders probably will back Bob Kennedy first against McCarthy (who they say is a 62 per cent liberal) and, later, certainly against Dick Nixon.

After talking to what seems like an endless number of labor leaders who keep saying, "Well, I really don't know" (and they meant it), one discovers their discomfort with "Bobby" is more personal than political.

They can take him politically though they can't socially. Everybody rubs everybody else the wrong way -- and labor leaders don't jump in the pool. They play gin rummy alongside. A handful of union leader feel so strongly about "Bobby" that they said they'd prefer Nixon.

Most will back Kennedy, but with now much, and with what toughness, and with what actual or apparent political karate, is uncertain.

Do they really go for Nixon's jugular? If they do and he wins, can they afford to have been so deadly in their propaganda that they get frozen out of the White House for eight years?

Only a handful of us will remember that there was strong Republican labor support for Dwight Eisenhower. And he paid off on that IOU.

He appointed the plumbers union chief, Marty Durkin, Secretary of Labor of the U. S. And when the late Mr. Durkin, who was ill, resigned with a slashing attack on President Eisenhower, the General, after consulting with his Vice President, turned the other cheek.

He appointed the late Jim Mitchell who, in the closing days of 1960, was given one of the most fraternal of labor banquets where, lo, all union chiefs agreed that "Jim" had been the "best Secretary of Labor" in history.

Believing themselves without a potential winner, labor may want to lose softly with the loser. They may have to live with Dick Nixon--and their houses are only a square apart.

The labor men are pros. But this waiting game will be the most tortured they've played.

NBA Announces Draft; Hawks Pick Harlicka

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An unholy war to sign college players was under way in pro basketball today.

The 22-year-old National Basketball Association announced it's first-round draft picks Wednesday with Westley Unseld, Tom Boerwinkle and Ron Williams among the top choices.

"I guess we have to enter into an unholy war of going after these players," declared George Mikan, commissioner of the rival one-year-old American Basketball Association.

Unseld, a 6-foot-8 two-time All-American at Louisville, was the No. 1 draft of the Baltimore Bullets in the NBA.

The Chicago Bulls chose the 7-foot Boerwinkle of Tennessee. Williams, 6-3 West Virginia star, was picked by the San Francisco Warriors.

None of the three has signed any contract. Each said they wanted to weigh all offers before deciding.

Unseld has been offered $500,000 over a four-year span to play with the Kentucky Colonels of the ABA. Baltimore did not reveal its offer although Buddy Jeannette, general manager of the Bullets, declared, "We're going to leave no stone unturned to sign Unseld to an NBA contract."

Boerwinkle, the No. 1 pick of Denver in the ABA, currently is playing in the Olympic trials at Albuquerque, N.M. "We certainly don't want to do anything to upset Boerwinkle's chances of making the Olympic team," said Dick Klein, Chicago general manager. "As a result we have had no direct negotiations with the boy."

Williams, drafted by New Orleans of the ABA, said he would like to play with the Warriors. However, he plans to consult with Bucky Waters, his West Virginia coach, before making a decision.

The NBA did sign two of its top draft choices. Bill Hewitt, 6-6 Southern California star, signed a three-year-contract with the Los Angeles Lakers. Bob Kauffman, 6-8 Little All-American from Guilford, N.C., College, also signed for three years with the Seattle SuperSonics.

Elvin Hayes, Houston's All-American was signed last week by the San Diego Rockets for an estimated $440,000 for four years. The only player signed so far by the ABA is Wayne Chapman of Western Kentucky by the Kentucky Colonels.

The other No. 1 choices in the NBA draft were Don Smith, 6-8 of Iowa State by Cincinnati; Otto Moore, 6-11 of Pan American by Detroit; Charley Paulk, 6-8, of Northeastern Oklahoma by Milwaukee; Gary Gregor, 6-7 of South Carolina by Phoenix; Don Chaney, 6-5 of Houston by Boston; Skip Harlicka 6-1 of South Carolina by St. Louis; Shaler Halimon, 6-5 of Utah State by Philadelphia and Bill Hosket, 6-7 of Ohio State by New York.

None has been signed.

The NBA first-round draft was conducted over the telephone Monday by Commissioner Walter Kennedy. It was moved up from May 8 when the other rounds will be held.

The ABA draft is scheduled for April 27, but it held what Mikan called an evaluation meeting March 9. Each ABA team then named four college players it could consult before the draft.

Tigers Finish 2-5 On Southern Trip

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unheralded Nebraska had the best pre-season record but final results for Big Eight baseball teams touring the south and west with little success aided up to another wide open championship race starting Friday.

The Huskers will have an early chance to shake up the forecasters as they play at Oklahoma, rated a strong hitting club with pitching problems.

Colorado was 3-3 for a six-game series in Hawaii; defending champ Oklahoma State 3-4 on a trip to Texas; Oklahoma 3-6 in Texas and Arizona; Missouri finished 2-5 in Texas; Iowa State 2-6 with victories over Northwestern and Minnesota; Kansas 2-7 after a rugged start in the potent Riverside, Calif., tourney; and Kansas State 2-9-1 in the South.

Missouri is at Colorado, K-State at Kansas and Oklahoma State at Iowa State in the other opening Friday-Saturday series.

The Big Eight's 20-42-2 preseason record in the south doesn't mean the league is in for a bad year. That's par for the course, since most of their foes had played 15 games or more in the sun.

A better indication of league strength is its 65-39 record in the NCAA's College World Series, with eight finalists and three crowns in the past 17 years. By May and June, the Big Eight catches up.

Oklahoma's Rusty Disbro won the series opener at Texas, Arizona and Arizona State— ranked No. 1 nationally — but OU lost the rest. In recent games, however, Rick Raczkowski, 6-foot-4 junior college transfer with a good knuckle ball, looked good in relief. He may become a starter.

Nebraska pitchers threw three four-hitters and a five-hitter at Houston, NCAA runner-up last year, giving up six runs in those four games.

Colorado's talkative Taylor Toomey, tall lefty with an outstanding 1.48 earned run average for two years, had control troubles and lost twice in Hawaii, but is expected to come back strong. Outfielder Lloyd Hutchinson, catcher Bob Anderson and pitcher-first baseman Dan Ruth got some big hits. Missouri needs pitching to go with Jerry Hurt.

K-State hit 10 home runs, three by Jack Woolsey, in 12 games down south. Van Bullock and Nick Horner led the erratic pitching. Junior Riggins is hitting .432 and Randy Cordill .370 for Kansas, but pitching is below expectations.

Oklahoma State has the pitching for another crown — the only question is the hitting. Sophomore Bob Richardson pitched a no-hitter against Houston. Veteran Bill Dobbs has looked solid. Coach Chet Bryan, said "I must admit, this team has the best attitude of any team I've coached at OSU."

Iowa State lost a pair of 3-2 games to Northwestern and a 4-3 game to Minnesota. Pitching is questionable due to injuries, but the club has good potential.

Power Packed Detroit Picked

NEW YORK (AP) -- The best bet in the American League is that the Boston Red Sox will not repeat The Impossible Dream in 1968.

Everybody needs somebody somewhere. As a result the race could very well come down to the last day again.

Detroit needs a bullpen. Baltimore still has arm problems. Chicago always is short of runs. Minnesota has problems of shortstop and is concerned about Jim Katt's arm. California still has to carry a full head of steam for an entire season.

Detroit appears to have the best chance of making it all the way.

The Tigers haven't won since 1945 and just missed by one game last fall. They have solid front-line hitting and formidable front-line pitching. An injury to catcher Bill Freehan or outfielder Al Kaline could kill them but the loss of key players would derail any of the other contenders, too.

Mayor Smith's Tigers can throw good, if not spectacular, pitching at you every day with Mickey Lolich, Joe Sparma, Earl Wilson and Denny McLain in rotation.

The power of Kaline, Freehan, Willie Horton, Norm Cash and Dick McAuliffe should provide enough margin to overcome late inning letdowns by the relief corps.

1. Detroit
2. Baltimore
3. Chicago
4. Minnesota
5. California
6. Boston
7. Cleveland
8. New York
9. Washington
10. Oakland

Semi-Finals Set Tonight At Matthews

MATTHEWS - Four teams remain in the running for the championship of the Matthews independent basketball tournament after last night's quarter-finals in which the Daily Standard, Morehouse, Sikeston Bakers Union and Matthews bowed out.

Tournament favorites Risco and Mounds, Ill., crashed the century mark in posting wins with Risco opening the night with a 100-82 win over the Standard and the later ending the night's activities with a 101-33 win over Matthews.

Ross upset Morehouse, 74-67, behind the 29-point night of Larry Blunt. Bill Kelly had 14 for Morehouse.

Cape Girardeau's Hawks took a 61-48 win over the Bakers Union as Bill Kiehne fired in 18 and Bob Miller added 16 for the Hawks offensive punch. Josh Boyd had 16 for the Union.

Bill Burd fired in 27 points to lead Mounds's assault. Larry Boner had 11 for Matthews.

Tonight's pairings has Risco facing Ross at 7 p.m. and Cape Girardeau going against Mounds, Ill. at 8:30 p.m. The finals will be held tomorrow night with the winners trying for the title at 8:30 p.m. preceeded by the consolation match at 7 p.m.

Eisenhower Leads Opening Day Ritual

Johnson, now 0-3 and the only President still waiting for his first winner in baseball's annual opening day ritual, may pass up the opportunity and call on teammate Hubert H. Humphrey to throw the inaugural ball. The vice president's relief record is 0-1.

Not since the depression days of Herbert Hoover has the presidential pitching record been so impoverished. Hoover needed four tries to watch a winner as the Senators squeezed out a 1-0 victory in his final appearance in 1932. And even then it took 10 innings.

The White House is still silent on whether Johnson, who has announced he won't run for re-election, will make the traditional trip to the ballpark next week for his fourth try. His attendance is uncertain.

Humphrey, the ever-ebullient, substitute, is No. 2 in this as well as other duties, although his pitching assignment could be complicated by the fact his baseball loyalties belong unabashedly to the Minnesota Twins.

The Senators, losers of five straight openers and thus responsible for Johnson's record, will be underdogs again next week against the Twins, who came within a game of winning the 1967 American League Pennant.

In recent years, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who once skipped an opener to play golf, leads his colleagues at 4-3. Franklin D. Roosevelt finished 4-4, Harry S. Truman bowed out at 3-4.

Surtax Faces Harder Time Passing House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted for hiking taxes while holding down federal spending but election-year consideration and a parliamentary squabble with the House casts doubts on the final congressional verdict.

The Senate voted 57 to 31 Tuesday for a bill combining three major provisions:

— The 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes proposed by President Johnson, which has been blocked in the House Ways and Means Committee since last summer.

— A $6 billion reduction in federal spending.

Backers of the tax hike-spending cut proposal voiced confidence the Senate's strong endorsement of the measure boosted prospects for an eventual tax increase and some House members agreed with that analysis.

But the Senate vote also demonstrated that most congress members up for re-election this November may not be enthusiastic about voting for a tax increase.

Of the 28 senators expected to seek re-election this year, 19 voted against Tuesday's package proposal.

This problem is likely to be accentuated in the House, where all 435 members face re-election.

House and Senate conferees charged with forging a bill acceptable to both chambers scheduled their first meeting for late today.

Advance word from the House conferees was they would look favorably on few if any of the 18 provisions approved by the Senate.

The House traditionally has been jealous of its constitutional prerogative to originate tax measures in its Ways and Means Committee. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee, manager of the original excise tax bill, said he saw little chance the House would accept the package amendments.

Long, who opposed the package plan, voiced belief Johnson's Sunday night speech, urging passage of a tax hike and expressing willingness to accept a spending cut, swung enough votes to win Senate approval. Long said Johnson's announcement he would not seek re-election also won him Senate sympathy.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., a co-sponsor of the package, agreed there was slight chance it would be accepted in the conference.

But Smathers, who will be a conferee, said he would insist that House leaders make some statement about greater friendliness toward a tax boost before he would agree to have the amendment dropped.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., the other co-sponsor, told a reporter he would be unwilling to settle for such a statement.

"Either we get a tax increase on this bill or I don't think we will get it," he said.

"If we wait for the House to act later, it will be close to the election, and it will never pass."

The package plan also calls for a $10 billion slash in new appropriations for the next year and a 315,000 rollback in the number of federal employes.

Other major amendments would:

— Repeal a freeze provision on federal matching funds for aid to Families with Dependent Children included in the 1967 Social Security act.

Fraud Detected In Viet Youth Group's Ranks

SAIGON (AP) — A youth group whose 32,000 members are supposed to expose fraud and corruption is having trouble. Its top leaders have been arrested for fraud and corruption.

The black-shirted Anticorruption Youth was founded in 1965 by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky when he was youth minister and premier. The organization is still under his wing, and he is reported greatly angered that the leaders fell into evil ways.

Those arrested March 15 were Dang Van Thu, national chief of the organization; Le Van Kha, inspector general of the group, who once was associated with a Buddhist group that tried to depose Ky when he was premier, and Le Van Thanh, head of Anticorruption Youth in Gia Dinh Province.

Ten other officers of the Gia Dinh section were arrested on charges of draft dodging. Another 600 members, accused of buying fraudulent draft exemption papers from the arrested men, have been called into the army.

The three top leaders are charged with misappropriation of government funds and the sale of fake draft exemption cards. The number of exemption cards involved is not known, but the price ran as high as 75,000 piasters, or $635. Also unclear is whether the draft exemptions were valid, which would mean complicity of government officials, or whether they were forgeries.

There are other charges against the youth group.

Early in January the Ministry of Youth was ordered by some unidentified official high in the government to pay Anticorruption Youth 6 million piasters for a one-month campaign to clear garbage from Saigon's streets.

The youth minister and officials of Anticorruption Youth say the organization received only a little over a million piasters, or about $8,500. But informed sources say the group spent less than 200,000 piasters for a few days' cleanup.

"On the first day of the garbage collection campaign, there were 300 Anticorruption Youth out on the streets working," one official says. "The second day there were 70. On the third day there were 30 and after that we stopped counting."

Lame Duck Day Raises Threat Of Defections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although few if any Cabinet resignations are foreseen, administration sources voice concern that many second-tier and third-tier officials will quit Washington in the nine remaining "lame duck" months of President Johnson's term.

Only 1 of the 11 Cabinet officers, Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, has old and obvious political ties that might draw him from Johnson's official family now that Johnson has declared himself out of 1968 politics.

As for the others, White House aides say they suspect there may be fewer resignations in the months ahead than in those just past.

Since late November Johnson has had to find new secretaries of defense, commerce, and health, education and welfare— as well as a new budget director and a new economic council chairman.

But if the lame-duck days of Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower are any guide, many bureaucrats in the echelons just below the Cabinet level will be scrambling for job security— in private industry or in safer political havens.

Cabinet officers seldom need to wonder where their next lucrative connection is coming from. But it is a bread-and-butter problem for most assistant secretaries, bureau heads and division chiefs. Below that, the winds of political change are not generally felt, even if a new party comes into office.

Truman suffered many defections in 1948, when even his subordinates figured he was a loser. Finding replacements became increasingly difficult, his associates admitted, until he confounded the forecasters with a stunning victory.

Similar problems may beset Johnson. But at the Cabinet level, some hitherto restive officers may be better content to remain, now that an end is in sight.

Postmaster General O'Brien, once a leader of President John F. Kennedy's famed inner circle called the "Irish Mafia," has given no clues to his plans.

GEORGE BENJAMIN WILLIAMS

Bank Robber On List

WASHINGTON - George Benjamin Williams, a frequently paroled habitual bank robber with a 36-year criminal record, who is reportedly heavily armed and is charged with robbing in 1965 the same bank which he victimized in 1946, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

Said to prefer robbing small branch banks located in rural areas and not to be reluctant to use the pistol, rifle or shotgun he is known to habitually carry, Williams is described as a "loner." He is charged, in a federal warrant issued at Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 3, 1966, with bank robbery.

Williams and another armed man allegedly robbed the Newcastle Branch of the Bank of America, Newcastle, Calif., of $19,554 on the morning of Dec. 22, 1965. Wielding, .38 caliber pistols, the robbers entered the bank, forced the employees to lie on the floor, and threatened to shoot the victims in the head if they moved. It is charged that Williams' accomplice leaped over the bank counter and removed all the currency from the tellers' cages while Williams held the bank personnel at gunpoint. The bandits, who wore hats and had heavy beards, then forced the bank manager to unlock the vault to provide additional loot which was stuffed into a burlap bag before the gunmen fled in their getaway car parked in front of the bank. In addition to threatening to kill any employees who did not cooperate, the robbers also warned the victims that there was a man with a machine gun outside.

One of the alleged bank robbers, a parolee from California was subsequently apprehended at Wells, Nevada, on January 19, 1966, and when arrested was found to have in his possession six fully loaded weapons and $10,000 of the bank loot.

Williams, who has spent most of his adult life in prison, allegedly participated in this bank robbery only three months after he was paroled from the California state penitentiary where he had been serving a sentence for possession of firearms by an ex-felon.

His criminal record began in 1931 when he was 20 and was arrested in Nevada on a charge of grand larceny. Upon conviction, he was given a sentence of 2 to 14 years in the Nevada State Prison from which he escaped, briefly, nine months later.

In 1935, while on parole from Nevada, he was arrested in California, convicted of grand theft and given a 1-to-5 year prison sentence.

In December, 1939, eight months after being discharged from prison, Williams was apprehended and convicted of possessing counterfiet coins. He was sentenced to three years in the United States Penitentiary at NcNeil Island, Wash.

During August, 1946, Williams began his gunpoint holdup spree in California when he and accomplices victimized a Walnut Grove, California, bank and also the Newcastel, California, bank, which he allegedly robbed again in 1965. Apprehended and convicted of these bank robberies in 1947, he was sentenced to 24 years at the McNeil Island, Washington, Federal penitentiary. After attempting to escape in 1949, he was given an additional sentence of one year and six months and was transferred to the United States Penitentiary at Alcatraz, Calif. Given a conditional release in 1955, he was returned to prison in 1960 after violating this privilege.

In July, 1963, one month after he was again paroled, Williams was arrested in California, subsequently convicted of possession of firearms by an ex-felon and given a six months' to five-year prison sentence. He was released on parole from this sentence on September 20, 1965, and three months later allegedly began his latest crime binge.

Williams is a white American, who was born in Malheur County, Oregon, on June 15, 1911. He is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 155 pounds, has blue eyes, brown, graying hair which is balding, a ruddy complexion and a medium build. The tip of his ring finger on his right hand is missing. Williams, who has a tattoo of a woman's head on his left forearm, has been employed as a construction worker, dairy worker, pipe fitter, barber and auto mechanic and formerly owned and operated his own mine.

This fugitive is said to be an avid outdoorsman who likes to camp out in romote areas for extended periods of time and to travel by foot or horseback. Williams speaks Spanish fluently, reportedly has camping equipment with him, and has also been known to prospect and roam extensively throughout mountainous regions. He reportedly dresses neatly on occasion, frequently wears glasses, and has been described by acquaintances and prison authorities as a "self-imposed isolationist," an "introvert" and a "river rat."

Williams has been the ruthless ringleader in several bank robberies, allegedly was armed with a revolver in the bank robbery for which he is currently being sought, and should be considered armed and very dangerous.

Should you have any information concerning George Benjamin Williams, you are requested to immediately notify the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

April 4, 1948

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Stallings, jr., announce the arrival of a son born March 28, at the Sikeston General Hospital. The son has been named Homer Lee Stallings, III.

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? (Matthew 20:22)

PRAYER: O God, we pray for those who are risking their lives because of their faith in Christ and dedication to Him. We pray that our own lives may be inspired to greater faithfulness even though we become so unpopular, or disliked, or suffer loss for Thy sake. Strengthen us to drink the cup of faithfulness. In Jesus' spirit. Amen.

Trudeau Heads Line for Prime Minister Post

OTTAWA (AP) — Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau was a big favorite today to become Canada's next prime minister as the Liberal party assembled for a three-day convention to pick a successor to Lester B. Pearson.

With the vote still two days away, Trudeau declined to predict victory on the first vallot, and other contenders were reported putting out feelers for a stop-Trudeau drive.

Fifteen of 19 announced candidates for the post of party leader, and with it the prime ministership, were still in the race, including seven Cambinet members.

Informal polls indicated Trudeau would lead on the first ballot by a substantial margin, but Foreign Minister Paul Martin, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and trade Minister Robert Winters also registered significant strength.

The latest Gallup poll showed Trudeau far out in front in popular support in urban centers. Thirty-two per cent of the persons quizzed named Trudeau their first choice with 14 per cent for Martin, 10 per cent for Winters and 4 per cent for Hellyer.

This may be a factor in the convention voting since the Liberals face a national election, probably within a few months.

Sharp, listed fifth in most polls, expressed belief that a majority of his followers would switch to Trudeau but this was disputed by all the other leading contenders. Martin, Hellyer and Winters all claimed they would get most of Sharp's delegates.

Sharp's switch did, however, bring to Trudeau the finance minister's elaborate campaign organization and it gave Trudeau a total of seven Cabinet ministers in his camp. Hellyer has four and Martin three.

Today's convention program was devoted mostly to worship meetings at which the eight leading candidates were given an opportunity to discuss domestic and foreign affairs and to answer questions from delegates.

The evening program was dedicated to Pearson, who is retiring at the age of 70 after five years as head of the government. He was to deliver his farewell speech to the 2,481 delegates, but was not expected to indicate which candidate he favors.

The convention will vote Saturday afternoon at its final session.

Voters Show Dislike for Incumbents

In the last seven elections for mayor and city council, 18 incumbents have run against opposition and 14 have been defeated.

Neither political party in this city of 17,083 seems to escape the voters' antipathy. Six of the incumbents rejected have been Democrats, eight were Republicans.

Robert A. Merrill, the present mayor, thinks the results prove merely that there is a healthy two-party system. He may speak as an authority. Merrill, a Democrat, was in office before 1965 but lost that year, only to be returned in a subsequent election. Merrill, incidentally, has one more year of his present term to serve. He hasn't indicated whether he'll take another crack at the hex next year.

OPPOSITES CLICK IN MIXED-UP MATCHMAKING

Tent dresses have folded, space suits have been grounded and geometric blocks put back in their box. It's fashion and it's fun, but a girl is a girl is a girl. The 'nowest' clothes are out to show it. Perch an over-sized pair of rose-tinted spectacles on the tip of your nose and open your eyes very wide. The fashion view from here to spring and beyond is a garden blooming with separates for you to pick and put together.

ON YOUR MARK!

Hopskotch is happiness and jump rope is dandy, but the greatest game this spring is making, mixing, matching a wardrobe of separates. "Separatism" is a matter of proportion—all yours. The game aims at individualism; bringing out every girl's special beauty. Make your own rules and break them. The choice is multiple.

GET SET!

Here's a winning combination made from McCall's 9125 (Misses' Sizes) or 9126 (Young Junior/Teen Sizes). A lean, little shirt is tucked into a softly gathered dirndl and the two parts are pulled together with the right belt. When you make your first match, try a soft jersey fabric on top with a synthetic-blend fabric on the bottom. After this first hop toward spring, you will be ready for a skip and a jump into a flexible wardrobe of separates to take apart and put back together again in a variety of ways. Mixed matches are the sporting, smashing, dashing way to get about from now on.

"Separatism" is a thinking girl's game. Having quickly caught on to the fun of mixed-up matches, it is easy to understand that it takes more than one kind of thread to hold a pair together.

SEW!

The jersey shirt needs 'give" and "Dual Duty," a cotton covered dacron thread, has it. When it comes to the medium-weight fabric which you have chosen for the skirt, sew it up with Mercerized Cotton Sewing thread. Put your waist in snape by making the gathering stitches with "Heavy Duty" thread which has the extra muscle required for drawing up your gathers. The best way to put on buttons and keep them there is with "Silk Twist." If you are going to work your buttonholes by hand, use the same "Silk Twist." Bound or machine-made buttonholes should be done with the same thread as used in your garment construction. Take a color tip and select your thread one shade darker than your fabric. If you want to learn all the inside tips about matching the right thread to the fabric and the job at hand, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet S-807, "How to Choose THE RIGHT THREAD."

Ann Landers

Father Entitled to Decent Treatment

Dear Ann Landers: How much does a daughter owe a father who never did anything for her?

Ever since I was knee-high I listened to my father complain about the government, his boss, his health, and his relatives. I remember crying myself to sleep night after night, praying as I wept, "Dear God, please make him go to work tomorrow."

When I was 18 I left home. I educated myself, have a fine position, and am happily married. My father still worries me with his problems. He writes, phones, sends telegrams, comes to visit much too often and gives me a migraine headache on the third day of his visit.

Recently he hinted that he expects us to look after him when he gets older. He has no job pension, only government Social Security, which isn't much. My husband dislikes my father intensely and has told me he would never give the old man a red cent.

Since I am the only child, my father has no one but me. He has alienated all his other relatives and is very much alone. What do you think? --- TORN

Dear Torn: You have a moral obligation to see that your father does not go hungry or without shelter. I am not suggesting that you be overly generous -- just decent. And, incidentally, your husband's attitude is less than lovely. Please tell him I said so.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife changed to my religion and married in my church. Her parents have been wonderful but her grandmother has never forgiven her.

Last week our first child was born. The baby has a reddish birthmark, the size of a dime, on his forehead. The grandmother says it is God's punishment because my wife left her religion. She says the child will carry it for life. I know this is pure balderdash but my wife is very upset. Please say something. -- J.L.

Dear J. L.: Birthmarks are not punishment for anything. Granny should be hauled up short for practicing witchcraft without a license. A good dermatologist can probably remove the birthmark when the child is older. Check it out.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is hard-working, a great father and your column has helped me realize what a gem he is.

These past several weeks Ed has been talking in his sleep. He keeps referring to "Louise." (This is a girl who works in his office.) All his remarks are very formal -- such as, "Louise, bring in the Houston file . . . Louise take a letter to Mr. Kensington. . ." I have been staying up until dawn waiting to hear something personal, but so far it's strictly business.

When Ed talks in his sleep he pronounces every word clearly--his diction is perfect. This makes me nervous. Do sleep talkers know what they are saying? Should I mention this to Ed when he is awake? ---DARK CIRCLES

Dear Dark: If Ed speaks clearly, consider yourself fortunate. It's those mumblers that can drive a wife crazy.

Sleep talkers do not know what they are saying. And what they say is not necessarily a replay of what they have said in the past. Ed's recitation simply means he is thinking about his work, and that's good, not bad.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Highways

Colonists from England brought the term highway to America. Wild animals there, as in America, traveled the grassy high ground in search of the best grazing land and public thoroughfares that followed these animal paths between communities became known as "high roads" or "high ways" and, finally, highway.

Tim Morris

EVANSVILLE, Ind. -- Tim Morris, representing Sung Dug Kwan Judo Club of Evansville, placed in the eight year old division at the Indiana Judo Association and Judo Black Belt Federation Invitational Tournament held at Indianapolis.

Tim, who was promoted to the ranking yellow belt within his school, defeated his first three opponents, but lost for top honors in the final elimination match. Tim's younger brother Gary, five, was one of Indiana's youngest Judo players to participate in tournament competition. Gary shows great promise of being an outstanding Judo player, says Wesley Hughes, Second Degree Black Belt. Hughes is Tim and Gary's ranking instructor in their study of Judo.

Tim and Gary and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merlin E. Morris and sister, Julie, are former residents of Sikeston, Mo. who live in Evansville where Morris is employed by the Evansville Redevelopment Commission.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The Missouri School District Reorganization Commission will use the following guidelines or criteria when they draw a plan for setting up new public school districts in the state. These guidelines are:

Districts to include varied economic, racial and ethnic characteristics.

Urban and suburban districts of 5,000 pupils minimum with a desirable range of 10,000 to 30,000.

Sufficient taxable wealth in each district to support a reasonable part of the educational program cost.

The last of these criteria, that is "sufficient taxable wealth in each district," may prove difficult because of the wide variation in assessment practices, as well as the widely differing amounts of taxable wealth in school districts throughout the state. Just as, for example, some schools in St. Louis County have as high as $41,000 taxable valuation per child and others through the state down as low as $3200 per child.

Standarization of assessment practices which must be imposed, as they will not happen otherwise, could correct some of this. Larger districts will also help, but if all Missouri's children are to have anything like an opportunity for about the same education, this can be brought about only by much larger increases in state money to those districts unable to support an adequate school program through local taxes.

Welcome though it was, the last change in the foundation program which provided $10,000,000. more for the Missouri Schools, as recommended by the Governor and passed by a special session of the General Assembly, allocated the money as follows:

Increased equalization, that is aid to the poor schools, by $2.50 per pupil.

Increased the second level equalization quota and this goes to those schools who vote at least a $2.75 local levy, based on 30 per cent of true valuation, by $0.75 per pupil but increased the flat grant per pupil, that amount going to all schools regardless of their ability to support education, by $9.50. Thus the district with $41,000. valuation per child also received $9.50 per pupil as did the poor school with $3200. of local tax backing per child.

We do not think it is fair to Missouri's children, to allow these vast differences in the quality of educational programs, to exist.

In the area of charater training, moral, ethics, etc, it is somewhat difficult for a parent or teacher to tell a pupil that "Honesty is the best policy" that dishonesty or wrong doings do not pay when the cases of Senator Thomas Dodd and Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, prove that they do.

Pre-enrollment for all children whose parents wish them to attend public school kindergarden next fall will be held in each elementary school on Friday, April 19, 1968, from 8 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. In order to be enrolled, a child must be 5 years of age on or before September 15, 1968. He must have an up-to-date immunization record or to be in the process of getting it.

When enrolling, parents may indicate a preference for the morning session or an afternoon session. However, assignments must be made on the basis of bus routes, nearness to school and their valid reasons which must be taken into consideration.

Boy and Girl Week will be held during the week of May 12 through 17 with the following special days:

Sunday, May 12 is A Day In Church (or Sunday school).

Monday, May 13 is Citizenship and Patriotism Day in which we hope to emphasize the heritage which we enjoy and the responsibility which our freedom entails.

Wednesday, May 15 is Health and Safety Day.

Thursday and Friday, May 16 an 17 is Field Events Days in which contests and athletic events of a low degree of organizations are held.

Ribbons are awarded for many of these activities.

The Open House schedule, in which parents are invited and urged to attend have been set as follows:

Thursday, May 9 at Senior High School

Friday, May 10 at Middle School

Tuesday, May 21 at Matthews School

Wednesday, May 22 at Southwest and Lincoln Schools

Thursday, May 23 at Airport and Lee Hunter Schools.

During Open House exhibits and or examples of work done by students, displays of education materials or techniques, etc., are on display for visitors.

First grade pre-enrollment will be held in all elementary schools on Friday, May 10 from 8:00 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. All children, 6 years of age on or before September 15, 1968, are eligible to enroll. An exception is that children who have attended a full year of public school kindergarten in other districts are eligible for enrollment, if they are 5 years and 10 months of age on September 15, 1968.

Birth certificates and immunizations are required for first grade enrollment. Children without a birth certificate or incomplete immunization will be temporarily enrolled but may not attend classes when school opens until these requirements are met.

It is very important that parents of this years 5th and 6th graders, who next year will be at Middle School, attend the orientation programs which have been scheduled. This schedule is as follows:

Lee Hunter -6th grade -Friday, March 29, 7:00 p.m.
Lee Hunter - 5th grade - Wednesday, April 17, 7:00 p.m.
Airport - 5th Grade - Tuesday, April 2, 7:00 p.m.
Airport -6th grade - Thursday, April 18, 7:00 p.m.
Lincoln - 5th grade - Wednesday, April 3, 7:00 p.m.
Matthews -5th grade - Thursday, April 4, 7:00 p.m.
Matthews - 6th grade - Tuesday, April 16, 7:00 p.m.
Southwest - 5th grade - Monday, April 8, 7:00 p.m.
Southwest - 6th grade Tuesday, April 9, 7:00 p.m.

If for some reason you cannot attend this meeting, individual meetings will be necessary with school officials at a later date.

If You Were the Judge

Act Does Not Admit Liability

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

While running may be good for the figure, it wasn't a good idea when Margie was trying to cross a street. Looking like an angel, she almost ended up with wings when motorist Marty ran her down. Fortunately, however, Marty rushed her to a hospital in his car and her life was saved. And, for months thereafter, Marty checked with the hospital regularly just to make sure that Margie would be alright. Thereafter, however, Margie checked on Marty and sued him for damages.

"Obviously," she told the judge, "Marty kept an eye on my condition because he knew that he was responsible for my injuries. What's more, he took me to the hospital for the same reason. He knew the accident was his fault and he acted out of guilt."

"That's nonsense," was Marty's answer. "I took her to the hospital out of the goodness of my heart. And, I kept checking on her in the hospital only because as a human being, I was concerned about her. But, none of this can be construed as my being at fault for the accident. I was merely being a good Samaritan."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider the actions of good Samaritan Marty as proof that he knew that the accident was his fault?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that because somebody picks up someone and takes that person to a hospital and is solicitous for the welfare of that person, it cannot be construed as an admission of liability. That a person acts as a decent citizen with proper humane sensibilities, concluded the judge, cannot be distorted into such an admission.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, April 4, the 95th day of 1968. There are 271 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, the U.S. Senate approved, by a vote of 82-6, a resolution of war against Germany.

On this date—

In 1932, Professor C.G. King of the University of Pittsburgh isolated Vitamin C.

In 1933, 73 lives were lost when the U.S. Navy dirigible Akron fell into the Atlantic off New Jersey.

Ten years ago — The first chapter of the scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, was established at a Negro college, Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

Five years ago — A White House advisory commission urged a massive attack on importers and large distributors of illegal drugs.

One year ago — It was disclosed that the 500th U.S. plane had been lost in the bombing of North Vietnam.

ALLEY OOP by V.T. Hamlin

BEETLE BAILEY by Mort Walker

A LARGE CYPRESS TREE, measuring between 90 and 100 feet high, and said to be over 150 years old, tumbled down in the tornadic winds last night at 8:10 p.m. on the Lincoln Scherer farm on highway Y, half mile east of Hunters gin. The tree struck the edge of the home and blocked the garage. Farm hands spend this morning clearing the 50-foot portion that fell. The base of the tree measured more than 10 feet.

Troubles Plague Saturn Flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The third stage of America's Saturn 5 super-rocket failed to restart in space today after two second stage engines quit earlier in a troubled flight that could delay the country's man-to-the-moon program.

Despite the premature shutdown of the second stage engines, other engines took up the slack and the world's most powerful rocket shoved into orbit the satellite weighing 132 tons. The satellite consists of an unmanned, 28-ton, Apollo 6 moon ship, a dummy lunar landing capsule and the third stage.

In all, the Saturn 5 has 11 engines: five first stage, five second stage and one third stage engine.

The rocket propelled the huge load into orbit but it was the wrong orbit— 110 miles too high.

If the Apollo 6 had carried men, a mission to the moon would have been aborted, said an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. After the malfunction of the second stage, too little fuel remained to propel the craft outward to the moon.

And he said the later failure of the third stage to restart would have prevented a moon shot in any event.

The restart was attempted more than three hours into the flight after the satellite had circled the globe twice.

"We did not get a re-ignition," the mission control center reported.

Controllers immediately ordered the Apollo 6 separated from the third stage. This was done successfully. Then the space craft engine— instead of the dead third stage engine— was called upon to propel the craft to a point 13,832 miles in space.

From this height, the space craft will make a flaming dive back to the atmosphere at lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour. If all goes well it will parachute to a landing in the Pacific Ocean about 390 miles northwest of Hawaii about 4:50 p.m.

The aircraft carrier Okinawa waited there to recover the craft.

After the premature shutdown of the second stage engines, the Apollo program manager, Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips said the flight proved that liquid rocket engines can fail, "but not catastrophically."

and a sixth of all China's territory, is mostly barren desert, locked by mountains. It has 1,500 miles of frontier with the U.S.S.R. It also has untold and largely unexploited natural riches: molybdenum, iron, coal, uranium -- the raw material for nuclear power -- and many other minerals.

Chinese rule there has been historically weak. The Chinese are a minority. The population is 75 per cent Uighur and Kazakh and the rest the ruling Chinese and other minorities.

As the feud between Peking and Moscow grew in scope, the Russians early in the 1960s began closing their consulates in Sinkiang and helping Kazakh and other non-Chinese refugees escape to the Soviet Union by the thousands. Soviet agitation, by Chinese account, led to riotous uprisings in an area whose history already had been dotted with Moslem revolts against Chinese authority. China sealed the borders in 1962 after thousands had fled, and there were reports of Chinese troops firing across the border.

In 1965, Peking came out with a book called "A Short Geography of China." It contended that Soviet - Chinese borders had not been definitely established and repeated the claim to 600,000 square miles. It carried a map showing undefined borders deep into Soviet territory.

Throughout 1966 and 1967 there were disturbances and even bloodshed along the borders and the flight of non-Chinese to the Soviet Union continued. There were reports of a guerrilla force organized on the Soviet side of Sinkiang, though this could not be confirmed.

The border quarrel was at its most acrimonious pitch last March, when Moscow's propaganda voice reported Moslems opposing Mao Tse-tung in bloody clashes. It spoke of "tragic incidents" in Sinkiang and "furious anger of all Moslems" in the northern areas.

"National minorities," said Radio Russia's Peace and Progress, "occupy 60 per cent of China's territory. This fact is worth considering. It indicates best of all that Chinese leaders at one time conquered alien lands that did not wish to become Chinese colonies. This was in gross conflict with the principle of self - determination."

Thereafter, the border issues tended to fade into the background for a while, while Peking was busy with the complex turmoil of the cultural revolution upheaval.

But Moscow's invocation of "the principle of self - determination" seemed significant. The cultural revolution had uncovered forces in the northernmost provinces who were strongly nationalist, even in the upper reaches of the Communist party.

The Russians for a long time have provided indications that they suspected and distrusted the directions China was taking under the domination of Mao Tse-tung's group of leaders. Should "self - determination" move forces in the border provinces to seek to break away, Moscow might not find a series of buffer states in the areas unwelcome.

Johnson to Go to Hawaii

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has agreed to direct contacts on peace between North Vietnamese and U.S. representatives and will fly to Hawaii late tonight to discuss peace and war prospects with top American officials from Saigon.

Washington is understood to have messaged Hanoi informing the government of President Ho Chi Minh of U.S. readiness to meet for initial contacts on peace talks.

Officials indicated the first Hanoi-Washington contact would probably be between top U.S. and North Vietnamese diplomats in Moscow, Vientiane, Laos, or some other capital where both countries have embassies.

Three Emperors' Battle

The Battle of Austerlitz in 1805 has been called the Battle of the Three Emperors. The emperors were Napoleon I, Alexander I of Russia and Francis II of Austria.

New Madrid Sets in Motion Plant Plans

NEW MADRID -- Mayor Robert Riley was authorized by the board of aldermen, in a meeting Monday night, to contract with R. W. Beck and Associates, engineers, to plan the financing and development of an electrical generating station. The station will serve the power requirements of the Noranda Manufacturing Company aluminum reduction plant.

The consulting firm will be asked to look into future needs of power in the city.

Larry Rost, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, was advised that the city would provide funds for the erection of steel street markers, which the Chamber had agreed to purchase.

A building permit was approved for Pat Summers, for the construction of a tourist court on highway 61, south of the city limits intersection.

April 9 - 10, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., were set aside for annual vaccination of dogs. On payment of $2 license fee, the vaccination for rabies will be given free. All dogs are required to be licensed.

The board voted to send two representatives of the city to the annual Missouri Industrial Development Conference in Jefferson City, April 23-24, with expense to be paid by the city.

Named to the park and cemetery commission were Charles C. Hatley, five - year term; Sam Hunter Jr., four - year term; Edward LaValle, three year term; L. H. Recker, two-year term, and Jack Long, one-year term.

Methodists to Use Theater, Milling Company Building

The board of the First Methodist Church has decided to use the Rex Theater for Sunday services beginning April 21, the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor, said today.

The senior high school cafetorium will be used for services at 8:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday. The Rex Theater will be used thereafter, and the same schedule will be observed, Wagner said.

The first floor of the Scott County Milling Co. building on Center street across from the Rex Theater will be used for Sunday School classes for the Senior High department, the Men's Class, the Ladies Philothea Class beginning April 21. The Ladies Gleaners Class will meet at the Rex Theater beginning April 21.

The Sunday School classes which will begin using the Milling Co. and the Rex will meet Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday at the senior high school.

The education building will be used beginning this Sunday, Palm Sunday, by the pre-school classes, the elementary classes, the young adults, the fellowship class and the open door class.

DIFFERENT SEATS are being installed in the Rex Theater this week and remodeling of the interior is underway. The theater will be used for services of the First Methodist Church starting April 21. Policeman Johnnie V. Taylor directs traffic as workmen carry in the seats, which were purchased from a theater in Blytheville, Ark.
